ALL STARS AND RED SOX BATTLE FOR "CY" YOUNG

Thousands Crowd Huntington Avenue Ball Grounds to see Great Game In Honor of Boston Americans' Great Pitcher.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE BASEBALL GROUNDS, Aug. 12.—A tremendous and far-reaching cheer burst from the throats of 20,000 baseball fans at 2:40 o'clock this afternoon when "old Cy" Young came on the field and began warming up. The cheering lasted five minutes, and the greatest pitcher the world has ever seen was forced to doff his cap time and again in answer to the demonstration. It was Cy Young's day, and there was a vast outpouring of fans to pay homage to the old fellow.

Long before the game began every seat in the grand stand and bleachers was occupied, and Jerome Kelley, the ground keeper, had to stretch ropes around the outfield. The outpouring of people was a remarkable demonstration of how "old Uncle Cy" is loved by the baseball public. The crowd was so great that for the first time since Boston won a championship pennant benches had to be placed in front of the fifty-cent pavilion to accommodate the overflow crowd, among which were scores of ladies. It was an uncommonly hot day, and everybody, even those in the scattered grand stand, simply sweltered.

Red Sox in Costumes.

At 2:20 the members of the Red Sox team came out of the clubhouse onto the field and a roar went up from the crowd when it was seen that the men were arrayed in grotesque costumes. Manager McGuire led the way dressed like Uncle Sam. Old Cy Young, the hero of the day, came next, fitted out like a typical farmer; then came Criger in a Webber & Field makeup; Tenney was a sailor for the moment; Sullivan were a clown's suit; Burchell and Delehanty were Hebrew Gessler, a country doctor; Wagner a Swedish comedian; Lootie, an Irish comedian with pink whiskers; Stahl and Lord were cowboys, and Laporte, like Young, was a farmer.

The men walked in single file around the bases and then broke for practice. For fifteen minutes they kept the crowd laughing with their ludicrous antics and then they gave way to the All-star team.

The all-stars had an addition to their ranks in the person of George Mullin, who was sent on by the Detroit Club in honor of Cy Young day.

Old Campaigners Out.

There were on the team of "All Stars" several who had campaigned with Young in previous years. There was Freddie Parent, the clever little shortstop, who with Uncle Cy helped bring the world's championship to Boston two years running. There was Jimmy Collins, former leader of the Boston Americans, Cy's boss when the championships were won, and there was also Otto Schreckengost, familiarly known as Schreck, the clever catcher of the Athletics, formerly a member of the Boston team under Collins.

Beside these stars there were Fielder Jones, manager and captain of the Chicago White Sox; Wee Willie Keeler, a veteran player, and one of the most popular ball players in the business; Harry Davis, the hard hitting first baseman of the Athletics; Hal Chase, the wonderful baseballer of the New York Americans; "Happy" Jack Chesbro, the famous pitching artist of the New Yorks; Jack Coombs of the Athletics, who pitched one of the most remarkable games ever seen on the Huntington avenue grounds, and other well known players from American League clubs.

Stars Arrive Early.

They were all on hand early in the day. Collins, Schreck, Davis and Coombs arrived yesterday afternoon, while Jones, Parent, Chesbro, Chase, Keeler and the others got in this morning.

Uncle Cy himself was up betimes, nervously awaiting the time when he would have to "don the spangles" and distinguish himself to the admiring populace. The veteran realizes that it is a great day for him, but he is a very modest man, and doubtless would not be so much in the limelight.

All this was not to be. It was his hero of the day, and he had to stand and take all that was coming to him. He was glad of this. And so was Mrs. Cy, who came all the way from Boston and journeyed out to Ohio to be on hand while the baseball world was honoring her big husband.

All the grand stand tickets were sold early in the day, and there was a great scurrying around on the part of the ball fiends to secure reserved seats. Hundreds of them had to give it up, and hike to the grounds and fall in line at the box offices, taking the best they could get, whether in the bleachers or in the fifty-cent reservation.

Taylor's Busy Day.

President John I. Taylor, of the Boston Americans, was the busiest man in town all day. He was the originator of "Cy Young Day," and all the details of the benefit had been worked out by him. He was on "pins and needles," such was his anxiety to see that everything went off smoothly and according to Hoyle. He took charge of the massive cups that were to be presented to Uncle Cy—the cup given by the players of the American League and the other big cup presented by the fans through the Post. He called on Fielder Jones, who was appointed manager of the "All Stars," and got from him the batting order of the team that was to oppose Uncle Cy. He was here, there and everywhere. He saw Jimmy Collins and told him he was expected to present the "Players" cup to Cy. "All right, John," replied the former manager of the Bostons. "I am not much of a speech maker, but I guess I can hand Cy the cup, and say, 'Here's the cup, old sport,' and I believe this is the kind of speech Cy will like the best."

Lieutenant-Governor Draper, who enjoys a ball game as well as the most ardent bleacherite, gladly consented to present the "Fans" cup to the veteran, and of course it was to be expected that he would have a little more to say than Collins.

All the receipts of the game between the Red Sox and the All Stars went to Cy. Early indications pointed to a tremendous crowd. A rainy day for the veteran's benefit could not have been turned out.

Young's fellow players did not arrive from St. Louis until today, after a long ride for the Red Sox, as they left the Mound City on Tuesday night. But they were as chipper as sparrows when they jumped off the train and hurried to their homes, as they had had a most smooth-sailing trip in the West.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Harry Jones of Detroit capped a hard one through the hot for a single, the ball just touching Cy's hand. Dave stole second on the first ball pitched, Criger's throw being high. Keeler rapped to Laporte and was thrown out at first, while Jones took third. Chase flied to Gessler, and Jones attempted to score, but Doc's fine throw to the plate nipped the runner by a foot. NO RUNS.

Parent made a startling stop of Thoney's grounder, but could not get the throw over ahead of the sprinter. The game was held up while the big presentation took place. Lieutenant-Governor Eben S. Draper, accompanied by Freddie Tenney, marched out to the home plate, followed by the players of both teams and after lauding the hero of the occasion, with the other players standing around, with uncovered heads, the mammoth trophy was handed over to the only Cy. This gift of the fans was presented. Jimmy Collins, going after Lord's foul, fell headlong into the fringe of fans seated in front of the third base bleachers. Lord then hit sharply to Chesbro, who feeled to Parent at second, and Thoney was forced. Fielder played in the right position for Gessler, and took his line-drive in the direction of the flag pole. Stahl walked. Laporte got a lucky single, the ball dropping on the right field line just out of Willie Keeler's reach, and Lord was over the plate with the first run. Sullivan struck a daisy-cutter off Chesbro's hands to Parent, who passed on Criger forcing Laporte. ONE RUN.

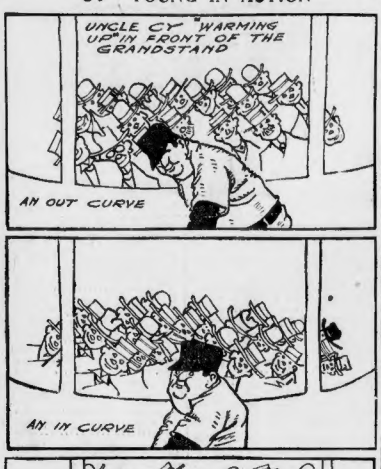
"CY" YOUNG IN ACTION



POLICE START GENERAL RAID IN BANDIT HUNT

MANY ARRESTS MADE IN HOPE OF OBTAINING CLEW IN METHUEN KILLING.

LAWRENCE, Aug. 13.—Every hobo, every suspicious character who cannot give a straight account of himself, is to be arrested in a general round-up which the State, the Lawrence and the Methuen police began to-day in northeastern Massachusetts in their hunt for the bandit murderers of Constable Emerson and Policeman McDermott of Methuen.

State Inspectors Flynn and Wells and Marshal Sheehan of Lawrence held a lengthy conference to-day in the marshal's office here, making plans for the complete round-up of vagrants and suspicious characters.

Forty special and regular officers of the Methuen police force this afternoon began a search of every house within a radius of four or five miles of the spot where Emerson and McDermott were murdered to warn every householder against giving food or drink to any hobo or suspicious character.

The officers are warning every householder to give the police of Methuen or Lawrence instant knowledge of any such visitors, so that a squad of policemen can be sent and the men captured. The officers are also asking everyone in the section to have any suspicious characters or beggars in town seen and for full descriptions in case they have been.

State Inspector Fred Flynn left headquarters in Lawrence very suddenly on a mysterious clew this afternoon. He did not even tell Inspector Wells where he was going.

Five arrests have been made now of men suspected of being able to tell the police authorities something about the crime of last Sunday, when the two officers were shot and beaten to death.

Joseph Devine, arrested here last night on a vagrancy charge and whom the police have been wanting to question ever since the murder, was sent to the workhouse for thirty days to-day by Judge Mahoney in the Lawrence District Court.

Round Up All Suspects.

Joseph Glavin and the two other men arrested on vagrancy charges at South Acton and also wanted by the police to tell what they know, are to be questioned there to-day by the State police.

The man arrested in Providence on suspicion of knowing about the Methuen crime is to be questioned, and must make himself very clear before he gets his liberty.

This is the campaign as mapped out by Chief Marshall Sheehan and Inspectors Flynn and Wells. Orders are to be issued to all of the police forces of Northeastern Massachusetts towns and cities to round up and arrest every suspicious character.

A large camp of hobos existed near Bellevue Cemetery, one mile from the scene of the murder until last Sunday. Then the men scattered. Most of them are known to the police. Now the dragnet will gather them in and they must tell why they fled from the vicinity of the double murder within a few hours of its commission.

Many Volunteers for Man Hunt.

The Syrian camp at Mud Pond, near Dracut, is also to be thoroughly investigated. It is known that a large number of Syrians were there last Saturday and Sunday, and then everyone left with the exception of the two men, who now fill the place and live in a shanty on the spot.

The police are going to try to find all of those Syrians and have them tell about themselves. It is known, the police say, that Policeman Emerson was hated by some Syrians ever since he shot one of that nationality a year ago in a raid on a camp.

Chief Marshal Sheehan has the names of many Syrians who have frequented this section during the last year and who have been in the police rolls before now. The list of names is to be sent to the authorities of all towns and cities of this section of the State to-day, and when the officers make any arrests the list is to be used.

Large crowds of citizens were at the police station and court house here to-day eager to volunteer to join in the hunt for the bandits. The search is widening and nearly every citizen in Methuen is acting as a policeman.

The Board of Selectmen of Methuen last night voted to offer a reward of $500 for any person furnishing information that would lead to the capture and conviction of any of the bandits.

An investigation to-day has convinced the officials that the two policemen were led into a well laid trap and then shot and beaten to death.

The woods around the pest hog where the bodies of the men were found are very thick and extend many miles and it would have been an easy matter for the assassins to have escaped to Dracut or even to the outskirts of Lowell without having to travel much in the open.

3 CHILDREN HURT AS CAR HITS CARRIAGE

When a Union Square-Sullivan Square car, running north, driven by Daniel Connors of 11 Tufts lane, Medford, at Washington and Medford street, Somerville, crashed into the vehicle, three of the Connors children were seriously hurt.

George, aged nine, had his left leg broken and sustained bruises; Madeline, aged seven, suffered an injury to an elbow, and Daniel, aged eleven, had serious contusions of the hip.

Mr. and Mrs. Connors and their two other daughters, also in the carryall, miraculously escaped injury. The vehicle was badly smashed. Part of it fell upon little George, and had to be lifted from him before he could be carried to the office of a physician nearby.

LIVERMORE UNLOADS IN COTTON RAID

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The Commercial says: Yesterday morning Jesse L. Livermore, the young cotton operator, liquidated his October contracts and did so in a way that took the market by surprise.

He admitted after the close that he had been a heavy seller. It is understood that he got rid of all his October cotton, although he is said to be long of some August cotton. "I did not care to fight the whole Cotton Exchange," he remarked with a smile.

Mr. Livermore began to buy his cotton some time ago. His average price on October was 9.30c.

TAFT ESCAPES INJURY IN FALL FROM HORSE

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Aug. 13.—Judge Taft had a fall from his horse Tuesday afternoon and narrowly escaped serious injury.

He was riding down a mountain road when the horse's knees gave way and Mr. Taft was pitched over his head.

He alighted on his hands and knees, and received only a few bruises.

NATIONAL LEAGUE GROUNDS, Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—The Boston Nationals wound up their stay in the East here this afternoon when they played their last game with the Phillies. To-night the Doves go West, leaving for Pittsburg at 8 o'clock, while the Phillies journey to Chicago.

Manager Kelley is greatly pleased at having taken two games from the hard hitting Phillies yesterday and by so doing, checking their onward career.

"We are not after the Phillies any more than any of the other teams, said the Boston chief, "but we will do our best against all the leaders. We will try just as hard against the Pirates to-morrow."

Bowerman Injured Again.

Boston is considerably handicapped just now by the accident to Bowerman, the middle finger of the big catcher's right hand being so swollen that it is impossible for him to use it.

"I don't expect to put on a uniform after to-day's game until my hand gets well," said Bowerman. "I hurt the broken finger again yesterday in trying for a foul, and if I continue I will put it in such condition that I will not be able to play at all."

FORTY IN CAR CRASH NEAR NEW BEDFORD

Special to the Boston American.

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 13.—A heavily loaded electric freight car collided with a suburban trolley car, with forty men and women passengers aboard, at Westport, near here, to-day. The exact number of persons injured is not known, as a number were able to be hurried to houses nearby. Several women on the car fainted, and physicians were summoned to their aid.

The electric freight car was bound for New Bedford from Fall River. It carried a heavy load of freight and was going at high speed when it struck the flight trolley car, bound also to New Bedford from Dartmouth and Westport. Every seat in the car was thrown from its seats. Splinters and glass from ventilators were thrown in all directions, and many were struck and cut. The trolley car was thrown far off of the tracks. Physicians and a wrecking crew were hastily called from New Bedford.

The collision took place on a down grade at Gifeasmond Park between Fall River and Westport. The crowded passenger car was in charge of Motorman N. C. Darfee and Conductor John Nester. W. A. Love-joy was operating the freight car. The passenger car stopped near Sanford road and the freight car crashed into it, shattering the rear platform to the very bulkhead. Lovejoy says he did not see the car ahead.

So far as is known three persons were seriously hurt, although all of the thirty or forty passengers were badly shocked and jolted by the impact of the collision.

A travelling salesman A. Stall, of No. 27 Walcott street, Dorchester, received a badly wrenched foot. He was able to come on to New Bedford. An elderly couple, husband and wife, suffered serious injuries. They were taken back to Fall River to their home on another car.

The other passengers took another car and did not report their injuries to the officials of the Dartmouth & Westport Street Railway Company, on whose line the accident occurred. The passenger car left Fall River at 10:30 o'clock, followed closely by the freight car.

BETTER TIMES NEAR, DECLARES JOHN MITCHELL

Noted Labor Leader, in Boston, Says Thousands Will Soon Be Re-employed.

"SITUATION IS IMPROVING"

"While there are more men out of work to-day than there should be under normal conditions, I believe the situation is gradually improving and that thousands now out of work will soon be re-employed."

This optimistic opinion of labor conditions was expressed to-day by John Mitchell, the celebrated labor leader and ex-president of the United Mine Workers of America, at the Revere House. Mr. Mitchell, who came here to open the campaign first vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, at Quincy, was discussing the condition and prospects of American workingmen with a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN.

"The labor conditions of the country at present are fair," he said. "By fair, I mean they are not normal—they are not what they should be after a period of general prosperity the country had enjoyed with it recently.

Many Returning to Work.

"There had been abnormal activity and the best of conditions prevailing throughout the country, but the recent financial and business depression caused by that activity to abate."

Then he made the statement quoted above, and supplemented it with this observation:

"Mills, factories, railroads and mechanical shops of all kinds feel the blow of the unusual depression, but a decided change which has taken place during the past few months is evidence of still better conditions to come.

"In the last two months many men have gone back to work and I look to see many more re-employed before long."

Mr. Mitchell was unfortunate in not receiving Vice President Dupree of the A. F. of L., who happens to be in Nova Scotia, and he will return to New York to-morrow. He declined to state the purpose of his visit to the Federation official or to talk politics in any form.

Visits Typos' Convention.

He took breakfast with International President James M. Lynch of the Typographical Union, and Charles Snyder, reading clerk of the typographical convention now in session in Boston, and afterwards said that he would visit the Typographical Stereotypers and Matters' Unions' conventions, but would not speak. He said he was making no addresses, because he could not risk over-taxing his recent serious illness.

He took leader of organized labor is now chairman of the trade agreement department of the National Civic Federation. The purpose of this department is to seek to secure peaceful and amicable conditions between labor and capital. Mr. Mitchell said that the new departure was very satisfactory to him, although it was one not thoroughly versed in the details of the work.

No Big Strikes in Country.

"There is no strike or labor dispute of any great magnitude in the country to-day," he said. "I believe that in the future this new department of the Civic Federation will be very influential in preventing such disputes and securing peaceful conditions."

PARKERSBURG IS SWEPT BY BIG FIRE

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 13.—Fire which started in the machinery of the West Virginia veneer and door company destroyed the factory and a million lumber, and for a time threatened the entire lower section of the city. The loss will be inside $150,000.

CAMBRIDGE BOY NEARLY DROWNED

Harry Burton, 20 years old, of No. 129 Magazine street, son of a well-known furniture dealer of Cambridge, was saved from drowning at Magazine Beach by Life Guard William Barber, while trying to learn to swim.

WRIGHT'S AEROPLANE BROKEN IN CIRCLE TEST

BUT EXPERIMENTS TO-DAY ADD TO PROOF OF MACHINE'S GREAT VALUE.

LE MANS, France, Aug. 13.—Wilbur Wright started for another trial flight to-day and completed seven large circles in 31½ minutes. At 7.30 he made another start, when he seemed to wish to experiment on height of flight.

He attained, according to a conservative estimate, an altitude of 90 feet. When he had been in the air 2 minutes 20 seconds, and was in the middle of the second circle, he came to the ground with sufficient force to smash some of the wooden framework of the left wing of the lower plane of his machine.

Pulled Lever Wrong Way.

He afterward said to a correspondent:

"I found the engine was misstiring the cut-off power and determined to descend. I then planned a half-turn without the engine and, when within three feet of the ground, pulled the lever the wrong way, thus depressing the left wing, and the aeroplane, while still moving, was lowered for the turn, came in contact with the ground.

"This is a mistake I have made often within the last few days, but I have always before been at a sufficient height from the ground to correct the mistake in time. I am now at all operations, but this happens to be the thirteenth day of the month."

Experts present, like Surcouf and Knapfferg, are enthusiastic over to-day's performance, particularly over seeing the machine planing a curve, something never before seen in France. They consider, although it may seem like a paradox, that the accident proves the reliability of the machine, because only a mistake when the aeroplane was more than four feet above it caused the accident, and it involved no risk to the occupant.

A Week for Repairs.

Wright remained calmly in his seat till the machine was on the ground. He says the repairs will require a week, and that the distance from town. Had the accident occurred at home, in America, he said, he would have had the machine in repair in 3 days. Wright accepts the situation with his usual stoicism.

The simplicity of the machine is illustrated by the ease and rapidity with which it can be taken to pieces. Each wooden stay is removed by taking out a screw or unfastening a hook. A few minutes suffice to dismantle the whole machine.

TELEPHONE CASE TO GO TO THE COURTS

Metropolitan Company Determined to Fight For Permit In Boston.

MAYOR AGAIN REFUSES

The dispute between the city of Boston and the officials of the Metropolitan Home Telephone Company as to the validity of the franchise granted to the company by the Board of Aldermen of 1906 will go to the Massachusetts courts for settlement.

Alfred S. Hayes, counsel for the telephone company, made this announcement to-day after Mayor Hibbard had refused for the second time to grant the company a permit for opening street locations for conduits and otherwise establish its business.

A request for a permit recently was denied by the Mayor. To-day Lawyer Hayes went to the Mayor's office and demanded that a permit be issued. Accompanying him was Assistant Corporation Counsel Arthur L. Spring. Mr. Hayes had previously visited the city law department offices in the Tremont building, where he was informed that his company's franchise was invalid.

Requests for permits at the offices of the street and wire departments were referred to-day by direction of the Mayor. Mr. Hayes then went to the Mayor himself. His refusal brought forth the information that the Metropolitan Home Telephone Company will appeal to the courts for judgment.

Mayor Hibbard decided to grant no street opening permits to the phone company after Corporation Counsel Bolster had informed him that the act of the Board of Aldermen of 1906 in granting the company an "countless location" franchise, and thereby binding future boards to its acts, was illegal.

TYPOS CHOOSE ST. JOSEPH FOR CONVENTION

Various Proposals to Enlarge Board of Officers Are Considered.

JOHN MITCHELL A VISITOR

At the fourth day's session of the International Typographical Union, in Ford Memorial Hall, Bowdoin street, to-day, St. Joseph was chosen as next year's convention city.

The greater part of the first session to-day was devoted to a discussion of several propositions to enlarge the international board of officers.

The executive council of the union recommended that there be one additional vice-presidents. Another proposition to remove the secretary-treasurer and the editor from the executive, emergency and arbitration committees of the executive council, was vigorously opposed by President James M. Lynch.

Many of the delegates favored a larger board of officers, on the ground that the great territory of the Union could thus be better represented.

The choice of convention city was then taken up, the ballot resulting: St. Joseph, Mo., 32; Minneapolis, 31, and Seattle, 31. On motion of John W. Hannan of Minneapolis, who yesterday nominated his city, the selection of St. Joseph was made unanimous.

This afternoon John Mitchell, recently appointed chairman of the trade agreement department of the National Civic Federation, and who came to Boston from New York, visited the convention. He did not speak, as he has not fully recovered from a recent illness.

To-night the delegates to the International Typographical Union convention will meet with the members of the Boston Typographical Union in Faneuil Hall, where the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the union local will be celebrated appropriately.

MAYOR INSISTS UPON ACTION ON BRIDGE VETO

Stirred to action by the continued attempts to keep his veto of the order granting to the Union Freight Railway Company a free and perpetual franchise to run its trains across the new Northern avenue bridge buried until after the next municipal election, Mayor Hibbard to-day announced that he will send a special message to the Board of Aldermen requesting them to take action on the matter.

Alderman Frederick J. Brand, who led the fight against the grant of the franchise, single-handed, has been chosen by the Mayor to take charge of the "final" action proceedings.

Eight members of the board have voted in favor of several hearings to keep the meats are "buried" in the Committee on Public Improvements. They plan to postpone the motion until after election, and they hope to round up more easily the votes necessary to override the veto.

BIG MEN PRAISE WHITE, DESPITE MELLEN THREAT

"You've beaten us this time, White, but we'll get you in the Fall"—Counsel Choate of the New Haven to Representative Norman White, in the "Merger" fight.

The fight of the New Haven railroad to down Representative Norman White of Brookline Republican, again attracted the attention of the State to-day when President Bernard J. Rothwell of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and Representative Robert Luce of Somerville came out for White in characteristic letters.

Against the White delegates are backing John A. Curtin, a Brookline selectman, who shares the law office of Charles F. Bancroft. Bancroft is the lawyer-lobbyist for Boston & Maine & Consolidated Railroad overtime bills and other things for the "Arkwright Club." T. Jefferson Coolidge, the Boston multi-millionaire, and Coolidge, T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., is a new director of the New Haven railroad. Ralph Coolidge, his cousin, fired the first gun in the anti-White campaign.

"Would Be a Calamity."

President Rothwell of the Boston Chamber of Commerce declared in his letter that the defeat of White would be a calamity to the Commonwealth. Representative Luce's tribute was all the more appreciated by White and his friends in view of the fact that White is for Louis A. Frothingham for the Republican Lieutenant-Governorship nomination.

It was said to-day that Mr. White that during the recent session of the Legislature Charles F. Choate, Jr., of legislative counsel for the Mellen road, had personally threatened to "get" White this Fall.

This is the Luce letter on the White campaign:

"Desire for Public Welfare."

Mr. Murray T. Edgar, President, Brookline Republican Club, Brookline:

Dear Sir—Your letter to the Brookline Chronicle concerning the record of Representative Norman H. White has come to my notice. It seems to me only just that the chairman of the committee which has charge of the appropriations for the Commonwealth should be a man who is a member, I should say a word in behalf of the fact that the value of his public service. The close associations of the committee room, particularly in the case of such a committee as ours, shifting more hours by far than any other committee of the legislature, give men unusual opportunities for knowing each other, by the disclosing merits and defects.

In nine years of committee work in the House I recall no man was more consistently and consistently watchful of the interest spired by desire for the public welfare. Public-spirited to the last degree, conscientious, absolutely sincere, wholly fearless, having to the line the best interest of the cost, he is of the type of men who save the republic. It should be noted that his wide experience in affairs as a successful man of business was of peculiar advantage to the committee, which found his opinions on matter affecting finances of the Commonwealth to be sagacious and prudent.

This word of appreciation I feel the more free to write by reason of the fact that I understand Mr. White is in the matter of my own candidacy for Lieutenant-Governor, committed to the cause of Mr. Frothingham. Very truly yours,

ROBERT LUCE.

Somerville, August 11.

REPORT BOY AND MONEY MISSING

The Ivers & Pond Company of No. 126 Boylston street reported to the Lagrange street police that a sixteen-year-old boy in his employ, named Ralph Crosbaw, had been sent by the concern to some place with a considerable sum of money and that he had disappeared. The matter is being investigated from police headquarters. Young Crosbaw lives at No. 141 Thornton street, Roxbury.

C. E. BROWN GETS CONTRACT

Superintendent of Public Buildings George W. Morrison late to-day awarded a contract to Christopher E. Brown to build an extension on the Dorchester District Court building, located on the corner of Adams and Arcadia streets, Fields Corner.

CUNARD CUTS QUEENSTOWN

ROUTINE BUSINESS OCCUPIES TIME OF THE STEREOTYPERS

Two sessions were held to-day by the delegates to the seventh annual convention of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Unions at the Revere House.

The morning's session was taken up by the offering of resolutions and reports of committees. Three visitors to the convention were the speakers at the meeting of Toronto, Can., of the Book Binders' Union, and the arrangements for all these unions.

President George Berry of Cincinnati, O., of the International Printing Pressmen's Union, and Editor John F. Conner, of the Allied Printing Trades Council addressed the Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union, also spoke. Routine business occupied the afternoon session, and the annual campaign banquet is held at the Revere House.

YOUNG SEARS' BODY NOW RESTS IN BACK BAY HOME

BROUGHT FROM PROVIDENCE IN SPECIAL CAR—WAIT FAMILY'S ORDERS.

Killed in an automobile accident, the body of J. Montgomery Sears now rests in the family home at Arlington street and Commonwealth avenue, one of the largest and costliest mansions in this city. The body of the young millionaire, who died in the heyday of strength and hopes, was brought to Boston from Providence early to-day.

With it came as custodians Charles F. Choate, Jr., and Nathaniel I. Bowditch, uncles of the deceased.

His mother and sisters are in Europe. They are expected to reach Paris to-day from the point where the news of the tragedy was received by them by cable. Messrs. Choate and Bowditch, it is said, have not yet heard or received directions from them regarding the funeral. It will take them a week at the earliest before they could reach Boston. Mrs. Sears is expected to send instructions regarding the funeral as soon as she recovers from the shock, and it is probable that the services will be delayed until she and Miss Sears, her daughter and the young man's sister, Miss Ruth Sears, shall have been brought to Boston in a special car.

Mrs. Sears and her daughter sailed for Europe from New York Aug. 4 and were enjoying a summer tour abroad when they received the news of the last tragic descendant of the founder of the great Sears family of Boston and New York.

George Saunders, a Providence man who was severely injured when the Sears car swerved from the road and turned turtle, believes that the speed at the moment was a mile a minute. The car was a new high-power roadster and it is believed Sears was driving it at a rate of speed limit when the accident happened.

OLDFIELD WILL RACE WORLD'S FASTEST TRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Barney Oldfield, the "Death racer" whose reckless riding in fast automobiles has time and again brought him face to face with eternity, is going to on Oldfield his own record in a daredevil feat at Elkhart, Ind. He is going to race the Twentieth Century limited train on the Lakeshore Railroad to-morrow, staking his life to a mad, wild, auto-mobile drive from Wishawaka, Ind., to Elkhart.

Of all the wild rides that have been indulged in Oldfield's career as an automobilist, this race with the fastest train in the world over a public highway is the climax. Now it is expected that thousands of autos will line the twelve-mile course to see the racers speed at death's side.

Oldfield, who time and again has been reported killed and has killed three persons and injured many others during his speedy career, is not unmindful of the danger. He has even prophesied that his lover of reckless driving will eventually bring his death.

The Sheriff, the County Solicitor and the local police are investigating.

FEAR BANDITS GOT $7,000 AT WIDOW'S HOME

WEST CHESTERFIELD, N. H., Aug. 13.—There is terror in this neighborhood to-night over the belief that bandits are in hiding in Forest Hills, Boston, and Methuen, Mass., and other crimes, have reached New Hampshire and crossed the State to this region to evade pursuit. The reason for the fear is the robbery of the house of Mrs. Persis Thompson, which is located on the Main street here, not far from the postoffice. She is a widow and has lived alone for many years.

Mrs. Thompson was absent yesterday visiting her daughter in a neighboring town somebody broke into her home and robbed a bank of $7,000 in bills. She says other property was taken, making her total loss $7,000. Detectives are said to be working and several arrests are imminent.

She had stuffed $6,000 in greenbacks into a pillow slip and placed it in a trunk. Cash was nailed up in doors and windows in the house, as is her custom when leaving home. The burglar or burglars had broken through a door to gain entrance.

The police are investigating.

GRAPPLE FOR BOY LOST IN CHARLES

The Metropolitan Park police are grappling for the body of a boy that was drowned while swimming off Heaton's wharf, off the easterly side of the North Harvard street bridge, Brighton. His name is unknown.

BIG BOOM IN LAWSON STOCK

A deluge of buying orders for Bay State Gas hit the Boston curb Exchange to-day following Thomas W. Lawson's advertising campaign to boost the stock of the regularized company.

The rest of the curb list was listless, and trading was dull, but the sales of Bay State Gas between 10:45 and 11:45 alone reached the immense total of 50,800 shares.

The highest quotation was 1 9-16 for blocks of 20 and 30 shares respectively. A block of 12,700, the largest transaction made, went at 1½.

BIG SUIT SALE AT STARR STORE

A big water damage sale is now at Starr's store, Nos. 35 to 41 Winter street, of cloaks and suits, which suffered severely from the cloudburst on Friday last.

In describing this unusual storm, the newspapers told how a lightning bolt passed through the Starr store, causing a panic, and how water burst through the opening in the roof.

The second floor of the store was flooded and apparel valued at $25,000 was wet. The goods were practically ruined, but enough harm was done to induce the management to put the exposed stock on sale at prices which are said by shoppers to make them veritable gifts.

The goods include many new lots from the storerooms. The management states that woolen suits are being offered at sacrifice prices and that there has been a stupendous cut in the prices asked for cotton, tailored and embroidery coats, misses' cavert coats, linen suits, princess suits, linen skirts, princess silks, linen coats, silk petticoats, jumper dresses and lawn and lingerie waists.

The sale is attracting a great deal of attention from women who are careful buyers.

BAY STATE GAS FUNDS TRANSFERRED

The balance of the Bay State Gas Company's funds in this State were to-day ordered transferred to deposit by Judge Putnam in the United States District Court. The fund, amounting to $212,104.09, will be placed on deposit, subject to check signed by the receiver and counter-signed by the court. This balance has been retained in Massachusetts for the purpose of meeting claims for counsel fees.

NOTED PATRON OF MUSIC DEAD

Charles F. Gardiner, until last month president of the New England Conservatory of Music, is dead at his home, Circuit, Brookline.

It was mainly through his efforts that the New England Conservatory of Music was moved into its new building on Huntington avenue. After his resignation he was succeeded as president by Eben D. Jordan.

Mr. Gardiner was a man of quiet social tastes, and was a member of but one club, the St. Botolph. He was a member of the corporation of the Church of the Advent.

He had always a keen interest in music, which interest he took pains to make restrict for students. From the time the New England Conservatory was first projected in Boston, in 1867, down to the day of Mr. Gardiner's death, there was hardly an object which he had so near at heart as the success of this school.

NEIGHBORS CALL HISGEN NEXT PRESIDENT

Candidate Cheered by Thousands of Voters at West Springfield Meeting.

HE GETS GREAT OVATION

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 13.—At one of the largest church gatherings ever held in West Springfield, Thomas L. Hisgen, Independence party candidate for President, was cheered enthusiastically last night by voters, irrespective of party ties, and assured of their support at the polls.

On a large banner tacked against the side of the church was this inscription: "Welcome to our next President, Thomas L. Hisgen."

The occasion was the opening of a series of lawn fetes at the Church of the Immaculate Conception. The church building is within a few blocks of Mr. Hisgen's home and the thousands who turned out on a pest part of his neighbors.

Mr. Hisgen's introduction was the signal for an ovation that rivaled in its heartiness that given the new party candidate when he returned home from Chicago. It was noticeable that women entered into the demonstration with the same intensity as the men.

"Honest Tom" Bluches.

The modest candidate bowed and blushed. Then he made one of his characteristic heart-to-heart addresses. He declared that such a home coming as he had had was worth more to him than the nomination he received at Chicago or even the presidency itself. This statement was received with a of the old town's leading men in West into the hands of the people and declared planks in the anti-referendum and recall if made into law would practically serve the same purpose.

These planks were not in the platform of the other parties. He also expressed his kindness and appreciation for work well done and while people live and labor, father than leave it until they are in the grave. In parts he said:

This honor came from the hands of men from all parts of the country men who paid their way to Chicago and could little afford to do so and I venture to say that never in the history of the nation were more before gathered at a meeting who were animated by higher impulses or inspired by fairer motives. But when I see the good will, confidence and approval manifested by my friends at home, I consider that to the greatest honor that can come to any one. I am finding it hard to fully realize what a great blessing it is to have kind friends and good neighbors."

Speaks Word for Workers.

"Has it ever struck you what a sweet-ener of life lies in a few words of appreciation and encouragement, legitimate rewards, that we ought to bestow every day of our lives? How few of us, however, take the trouble to stop a few moments and praise a servant for work well done or even pause to tell our nearest and dearest how we appreciate all the daily services which they so unselfishly render us.

"My friends, you have here one of the very best pastors in the whole country. He is worthy of your confidence. Show his hands by giving him all of the assistance you can in the building of your new posed new church. When you do that you will not only help your pastor and your church, but will help yourselves to become better men and women and better citizens of our great country.

Ringing addresses were made by Frank P. Sargent, hitherto one of the foremost Republicans of West Springfield, but who has come out strongly for Hisgen and others.

The winning personality of Mr. Hisgen is making itself felt in all circles and it is certain that he will make thousands of votes wherever he appears and has a chance to meet people.

Candidate Wins New Converts.

All the members of Springfield know Mr. Hisgen by sight, and they know that they are always good for several sales when they think of him. These little incidents of the street do not hesitate to take advantage of their acquaintance with the new party candidate for President, and as a result Mr. Hisgen has to duplicate many of the papers he purchases just to save unnecessary.

Bernard R. Freitag of No. 632 Halsey street, Roxbury, who is a travelling man, was won to the Hisgen and Gravis standard by meeting the candidate. He now wears a Hisgen button, and is making converts for the new party every day. Mr. Freitag usually carries a campaign button, but he will now depend on his trip, in Western Massachusetts to do the missionary discussed Mr. Hisgen and the other candidates.

"I'm going to vote for him, too," said the other, "but I'm going to do it because of his principles."

SCORE GOMPERS FOR ATTEMPT TO DELIVER LABOR MEN'S VOTE

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The attempt of Samuel Gompers "to hand over the votes of organized labor to the Democratic candidate for President" was severely condemned last night at the ratification meeting of the Independence party, one of the Twenty-ninth Assembly District in a hall facing Tompkins square. It was declared that Gompers also "ignored the Chicago convention of the Independence party party" and declared that union labor should support Hisgen, although the Independence party was composed largely of organized labor, was also pointed out.

Not a voice of protest was raised when District Leader Louis Wolf read the resolution, and it was adopted unanimously. And the audience was made up largely of union members. The resolution, following another, which indorsed the Chicago convention and pledged support to Hisgen and Graves.

The speakers were David R. Citroen, Leslie Ferguson, George Wilkinson, Dr. D. Lawrence Long Wolf, district leader, and the Rev. Dr. J. D. Bush. The resolution indorsing the Chicago convention and the candidates was introduced by Deputy Attorney-General George Gordon Battle, a member of the organization in the Twenty-ninth Assembly District.

Deputy Attorney-General Boehm received an enthusiastic reception when he presented the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, the Twenty-ninth Assembly District, duly elected delegates to the national convention of the Independence party, and sent the same uninstructed to the Chicago convention, and

Whereas, said delegates voted for Thomas L. Hisgen, of Massachusetts, for presidency and John Temple Graves, of Georgia, for vice-president and also for the platform of the Independence party, as adopted, and

Whereas, the members of the Twenty-ninth Assembly District of the Independence party are desirous in accord with such action now, therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Twenty-ninth Assembly District of the Independence party does ratify the platforms of the Independence party as adopted by the Chicago convention, and be it further

Resolved, that we do indorse the nominations made at the said convention; and be it further

Resolved, that we, the members of the Twenty-ninth Assembly District of the Independence party, will do all in our power to further the party's nominees and the platform adopted."

Woman Falls Heir to $500,000 But Will Not Give Up Her Work

Miss Maria B. Shepard of Reading

MISS MARIA SHEPARD TO RECEIVE $500,000 AS SHARE IN UNCLE'S ESTATE.

READING, Aug. 13.—After a bitter fight on book keeper, entered her claim as one of the nieces.

Compromise Affected.

It is now announced from New York that by a compromise agreed upon between the heirs out of court the fortune is to be divided, and Miss Shepard expects to get at least $500,000.

The will of Dr. Shepard was executed Aug. 21, 1907. Under its terms, after the death of the widow, the estate was to pass to a brother of the testator, Luther D. Shepard, and to the children of two deceased brothers, Edward U. and Thomas B. Shepard.

Another local heir is Dr. Luther Shepard, a Boston dentist, a nephew. Other heirs are Allen B. Shepard, Edward O. Shepard, Katherine M. Shepard or Newburyport and Edith R. and Ralph L. Shepard, both of Springfield. Ralph Shepard is a lieutenant in the marine corps stationed in China.

Ghost Stories Stirred Country.

Dr. Shepard was an eccentric character. He had a wide and profitable practice, and was identified with the old Democratic ring in Brooklyn.

Although possessing several millions, he continued in the position of city physician because he enjoyed the duties it involved. He taxed patients according to their means, and gladly treated gents deserving poor.

Shortly after his death his fine old mansion in the woods was reported to be haunted. There was a variety of stories which told of the spirit of the dead physician roving the rooms of the great house at night, and for a spell the whole country was terrified.

CRUISERS TO MAKE FIRST RUN TO AZORES

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 13.—The [illegible] cruisers Chester, Salem and [illegible] ham are to steam to the Azores in [illegible] in a test of sustained speed and [illegible] test type of machinery of coal consumption. The schedule is to maintain as near as possible a 22-knot gait to the Azores. On the return various speeds will be tried, the first stretch at 20 knots an hour, the second at 15, and 7[illegible] miles at 12 knots. The Navy Department hopes by this test to be able to decide which of the vessels is equipped with the

NOVEL DEFENCE IN BIG LARCENY CASE

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 13.—Put on trial on charge of stealing $100,000 from the Postal Telegraph Company, former cashier John Petrich declares that during the strike in 1907 the company received messages and charged full tolls on them and sent them all or part of the way by mail. After making this point, his counsel set forth the claim that such money collected did not lawfully belong to the Postal Telegraph Company, and therefore the company could not charge theft.

FORMER HUB MAN DEAD

John Frank Weeks, formerly of Boston, is dead at Lacolla, N. M. Weeks inherited a fortune said to have amounted to $500,000 from his father.

Certain eccentricities in the management of his finances a decade ago led to Mr. Weeks being placed under the guardianship of Judge William B. Stevens on the ground that he was a spendthrift. In 1901, at Lacolla, he married for the third time.

His guardian is reported to have in some way got Mr. Weeks away from his wife and on to New Mexico, where he was supposed to keep him.

The wife obtained a writ of habeas corpus, on the strength of which New Hampshire officers took Mr. Weeks away from the Boston officer just as the train they were on was about to cross the State boundary line. Mr. Weeks was taken back to Lacolla, and it was decided that a guardian had no power to prevent Mr. Weeks from marrying or living wherever he pleased.

BURGLARS GET $400 IN GEMS

Following a break in the home of Dr. Bertha E. Carter, of No. 71 Mt. Auburn street, Watertown, last night, the police today are seeking two burglars, who ransacked the house and carried away gems worth $400.

Dr. Carter reached home while the burglars were at work, but they escaped through a rear window before she could call help. The articles stolen include a gold watch, a gold crescent, which was a family heirloom, and a number of diamonds and other gems belonging to Dr. Carter's brother.

BEATEN BY MOB, GETS PRISONER

Knocked down by a brick thrown by one of a mob that was attempting to rescue a prisoner in charge of Special Reserve Officer Haverty of South Boston was beaten and kicked black and blue.

Throughout the attack he clung to his prisoner and landed Joseph Mulkern of No. 42 O street, South Boston, in a cell on a charge of drunkenness after a detail of police had rescued him. After the arrival of the police wagon Haverty ran into the crowd that had attacked him and arrested Bartholomew F. Connolly of No. 60 West Fifth street. Haverty claims Connolly was the leader of the mob.

CASE AGAINST LAMOREAUX IS ABANDONED

Former Representative S. John Lamoreaux of South Adams, against whom an indictment for accepting and requesting gratuities while in the exercise of his official duties has been standing for more than a year, was practically set free by the Superior Court Judge when Assistant District Attorney M. J. Dwyer informed the court that, in his opinion, it was futile to try to convict the ex-representative.

In a statement to the court Assistant District Attorney Dwyer said:

"In June, 1907, this case was tried for a week, after which trial the jury deliberated for seven hours. The result was a disagreement and in my opinion there is no prospect that for a better result in another trial. Therefore I believe that this case be placed on file."

Lamoreaux was allowed to depart with out giving bond, and in all probability no attempt to reopen the prosecution will ever be made.

Reduces Fat A Pound a Day

The Simplest, Surest and Most Effective Way to Get Rid of Surplus Flesh Without Drugs.

How to Prove It to Yourself Without Any Expense Whatever.

The first thing not to do when trying to reduce your weight is to take something that contains a drug of any kind, for by so doing the fat stays.

The moment you begin to do that, you give a distinct shock to the entire nervous and physical system, and though you may lose some fat as a result, you will lose your health with it.

Cases are known of fat people becoming permanent invalids by the use of starvation diets and dangerous drugs.

Fat people as well as others should realize that as a general rule there is a remedy for every defect in the human organism. Nature provides a remedy for nearly every disease. It is a law of life unfortunately. This is true of that dangerous and uncomfortable disease—obesity. Nature provides a remedy for it in the dangerous drugs and biting acids extracted from minerals, but from certain kinds of fruits, plants, herbs and other organic materials which are harmonious to the human system.

Among such materials which are simply a remedy for obesity which has not yet become universally known, but the use of which has already resulted in enormous benefit, and most probably in the saving of many lives.

This remedy is commonly called Reduc. The ratio at which this remedy will reduce fat, and do it harmlessly and surely, is truly remarkable. A pound a day is certainly the loss recorded, hour done by compelling perfect assimilation of the food, and ordering the excrement when it belongs.

The most remarkable feature of Reduc is that you can take all you want of it without nursing the slightest fear of harm. It can be chewed like candy and is pleasant to the taste.

Many physicians who before now were at a loss to know how to cure obesity, are now prescribing Reduc with remarkable success. It is a most wonderful remedy, affecting digestion and assimilation, and inducing a general exhilaration of mind and body. Wrinkles which appear in many cases of reduction of fat where nourishment does not, and starvation process is tried, do not occur when Reduc is used.

Reduc is neither "fad or food" nor "patent medicine." It is for sale by all druggists at $1.00 per box, or will be sent by mail prepaid, by the Reduc Co., 1232 Beaubien Bldg., Detroit, Mich. The company will gladly send you a trial package free by mail, if you write them direct to Detroit, so far as packages at store are sold.

For sale in Boston by Jaynes Drug Co., Frederick Stearns & Co., Henry Siegel Co., Washington and Essex sts.; Woodward Drug Co., 100 Tremont st., W. B. Rust Co., 707 Washington st., 955 Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, and 2 Bennett st., Malden; Rexall Drug Co., 115 Washington st., and 130 Portland st.

Cures Constipation

A free trial will convince you that Mull-Fruto is the most natural remedy in existence for constipation. It contains medical fruit-juices, and everybody knows that there is nothing so quick and thorough in curing chronic constipation and weak fagged nerves as a fruit treatment. You can eat and enjoy it like fruit or candy.

Full sized package, 25c and 50c, at drug stores. If your druggist has not got it, send your remittance to the Reduc Co., Reduc Bldg., Detroit, Mich., and they will send it prepaid. You can get a trial package of Mull-Fruto free only by writing to the above address. No free packages at druggists.

CITY SAVES $642,913 IN STREET DEPARTMENT

$10 EMPLOYES CUT OFF, SAYS EMERSON'S REPORT TO FINANCE COMMISSION.

Emerson's Street Department cuts:
Men discharged..... 410
Estimated saving.....$642,913

Superintendent of Streets Guy C. Emerson has made a report to the Finance Commission on the changes in the branch of public service and the work done under his administration. His report covers the men employed, the contracts made and the prices paid for work for the city.

He says that there are now 708 paving division employes a decrease of 128. When he took charge there was 934 men on the paving division payroll.

The West Roxbury paving yard has been abolished. He says this will save $10,000 a year. The Charlestown and East Boston yards have been combined. He thinks this will save $10,000 a year. The position of foreman in the Brighton yard has been abolished.

He says all work is now done by contract after public competition in bidding. He thinks that the city is paying less for paving work than it did last year, but the two jobs are alike, so exact comparisons cannot be made.

200 Less Sewer Workers.

He estimates that the decrease in the expenditures of the division this year over last year's expenditures will be $414,000, but he does not claim that the saving will represent all this amount, as less work is being done than last year.

In the sewer division he says that the number of employes has been decreased 200. Last year there were 918 men on the payroll. Now there are 718.

MILE A MINUTE DASH ON WHEEL OVER WIRE LINE

Prof. Gilmore Plans Startling Stunt for Paragon Park Visitors.

START FROM TOWER TOP

Do you know what Prof. Gilmore is going to do next week at Paragon Park? He will ride a bicycle down 150 feet on a wire suspended from the top of the Illuminated tower and plunge into the waters of the lagoon. Prof. Gilmore replaces Prof. Bonnette, the aeronaut, at Paragon Park for the balance of the season, and feels sure that he can thrill the thousands of daily visitors beyond anything before produced.

The professor's bicycle is equipped with concave tires that hold to the wire and leave to the professor only the problem of balancing himself on the way down.

As might be expected, the wheel will descend at the rate of a mile a minute, so the absence of holding a balancing pole while holding on to the handle bars of the wheel presents a difficulty as well as dangerous problem.

His performances will begin Saturday, and the Sunday American Outing Club members will have a chance to look over this stunning act on next Monday and Tuesday when they visit the park with eighty cents' worth of free tickets.

The free tickets are for park admission, the celebrated alligator farm and Alligator Joe; the Merry Widow House, where you get a price if you can catch the Merry Widow; a twenty-five-cent ticket to the Pergola and view for ten cents a fifty-cent admission to Lowande's circus for five cents, rides on the circle swing through "Merkwa" for a ticket and a nickel, admission to the Olympic Theatre and a coupon and two rides each on the roller coaster and merry-go-round.

Order the SUNDAY AMERICAN at once.

MONSTER SHIP FOR WONDERLAND BIG CARNIVAL SCENE

For the "Alice in Wonderland" Carnival at Wonderland Park the first three weeks in September, a huge ship is being prepared with bow-sprit and two masts so big and newly adjusted that the canal which now outlies the circus arena will encircle the vessel as though the fairy craft was lying at a pier, and upon this magic ship Alice will take her place surrounded by eighty beautiful young ladies.

The affair is under the direction of Assistant Manager Perry, John Coleman, ballet master and Lawrence O'Connor, the celebrated composer as musical director.

New aerial features have been booked for next week, and the after days of the first of September the grand carnival will occupy all the Dove street park entrance. It has even been suggested to give the very last week to a Merry Widow ball in addition to the production of "Alice in Wonderland."

Already a ton of confetti has been ordered, while will be showered from all sides upon the city, Sunday, Monday and visitors.

Next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN will publish fifty cents' worth of free tickets to Wonderland Park and its leading attractions for use on Monday and Tuesday.

2 PRISONERS BREAK JAIL AT PORTSMOUTH

Special to the Boston American.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 13.—Tying the blankets from their beds into a rope, Raffael De Profio, considered one of the most dangerous men in this section, and George Alberts of Northwest, escaped early to-day from their rooms in the hospital ward at the county jail. This afternoon they were still at liberty in spite of the efforts of the entire Portsmouth police force to recapture them.

De Profio was awaiting trial on a charge of assault with intent to kill his cousin, Mrs. Rosie Deberio, a month ago. He escaped after shooting a policeman and for several days gave the police a hard chase. Overtaken in a barn at Newington Point, he pulled a gun and shot himself in the neck. He is said to have threatened to kill Mrs. Deberio if he ever got free again.

Alberts was being held on a charge of choking his six-year-old child, who died three weeks after the alleged assault.

The two escaped by sliding down the blanket ropes. Jumped several fences and are believed to have found refuge in the woods near here.

MASS ON FEAST DAY FOR NIGHT WORKERS

Mass for the night workers of Boston will be celebrated at 4 o'clock on Saturday morning next, the feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary and a holy day of obligation in the Roman Catholic Church. In announcing the mass, Father P. J. Lyons stated that it would be celebrated at the usual hour of 2.30, but made the time half an hour later when told that the large number of newspaper workers who attend the chapel of the Immaculate Conception at No. 585 Washington street work on Saturdays here from usual.

HEAD OF WOMAN IN LAKE.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 13.—The head of a woman evidently about forty-five years of age, was found floating in the lake near the breakwater last night. The features are well preserved. Foul play is suggested and the police have begun a rigid investigation.

Mrs. Ogden Mills Smiles Upon Earl as Son-in-Law

The Earl of Granard, Snapped at Newport; and His Prospective Smart Set Mother-in-Law.

EXPECT MATCH BETWEEN MISS MILLS AND EARL

Approval of Newport Smart Set Won by Athletic Scion of Nobility.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 13.—One of the most observed an well as regular visitor at the casino is the Earl of Granard who, report says, is to make Miss Beatrice Mills, daughter of Mrs. Ogden Mills, his wife. It is thought that the betrothal will soon be announced and that the wedding will take place late this Fall.

While the Earl is devotion itself to Miss Mills, and while she makes no secret of her regard for him and is with him a great deal, the young man still finds time to frequent the Casino, where he is already noted as an expert tennis player.

Yesterday an incident happened to "show which way the wind is blowing." The Earl was playing tennis, and missing in such a way as to win round after round of enthusiastic applause. Miss Mills and Mrs. Ogden Mills joined the excited throng.

Out of the fall of his eye the Earl saw them. He completed his play, and then stepping out of the court, joined Mrs. Beatrice Mills, all restraint and embarrassment over his success in the game.

Then, showing the whole pretty little scheme had been pre-arranged, the Earl and the young woman skipped to a pretty basket position, which Mrs. Mills-Goodman had just driven up, and they sped away to Bailey's beach, lost to everyone else in the world but themselves. On the beach the young Earl in a half hour's swim proved himself to be one of the longest and best swimmers of the Summer throng here.

PEACE SOCIETY BOOKS OPEN TO ALL—TRUEBLOOD

Secretary Replies to Mrs. Shapley's Comment on "Extraordinary" Salaries.

Dr. Benjamin F. Trueblood, secretary of the American Peace Society, today replied verbally to a letter by Mrs. George H. Shapley to newspapers regarding the manner in which the organization funds are spent. Mrs. Shapley, who has resigned from the society, said she believed that most of the money received by it went to pay "extraordinary" salaries to the secretary and his daughter. She said:

"It is true that annual dues are only $2 for each member, but how small units piled up into thousands suffice for the secretary with his family and allies to make yearly trips to Europe and then be dined and wined at the expense of those members who cannot or do not care to look into the true workings of the American Peace Society."

Dr. Trueblood said that he received $2,000 a year salary and that his daughter was never paid more than $50 a month. "Neither of my daughters," he said, "ever went to Europe on the funds of the society. The books of the society are open to inspection."

COAL-PASSER ON BATTLESHIP DEAD

PORTSMOUTH, Aug. 13.—Charles A. Boyer of Pottstown, Pa., one of the crew of the battleship New Hampshire, died early to-day at the Naval Hospital, where he was brought three days ago, suffering from the effects of the heat. He was a coal-passer on the battleship.

Formerly Selling at $13.75, $16.50 and $19.75

$4.50 isn't much to invest in a stylish suit to wear this fall. Some will ask why we offer them at such a loss. Does seem as though we ought to put them away and bring them out with new goods a few weeks from now at regular prices. Many of the new suits will be the same styles and you couldn't tell the difference. But we want to emphasize the fact that we do not carry over merchandise from one season to another. No matter how stylish or popular an article is for next season, we close it out this season if it's a this season article. This keeps our stocks new and fresh and accounts for the wonderful popularity of the Siegel store.

Nell Brinkley Sees Her Own Bettys Come to Life in 'The Follies of 1908'

"MAKING SCARLET MOUTHS AT ME."

IT'S a funny thing to slip into a great, hushed, dark place filled with motionless, soft-breathing folks, and scooch down into your little roof garden chair that is so hard and Summery as a lawn seat, and sitting so, with your chin sunk deep into your hand, watching the flaring oblong of warm yellow light of the stage, to see the fancies of your own head set and heart and fingers—that grew from the ears at me and winking big winks over tips of your fingers—come swinging out there; making haughty eyebrows, and slow, lute the yellow flare—warm, live-swinging languid steps, and white-toothed smiles, flounce of flesh and cloth, with laughter and and little gay "Ah la la la la la la" to singing.

Really, truly, Bettinas, it was funny! I sat very straight then, and felt like a kid that behind the wild exaggeration of my whose wild, unformed fairy folk of his "pics" there were real girls; because, do I mind had taken shape and filed past him, silently, unwinkingly, in the dark.

My own, neat Bettys! Mocking at me with their wink-log, black-lined eyes, making scarlet mouths at me, laughing their shoulders under their hair. Oh, ho!

I always had a little firm faith in me not make them from the girls that I see and know and like to look at?

But I never knew that wild, frou-frou-headed things of plain black and white, just as they are, could slip—plit! like that into warm flesh and singing voices, and walk right out of the "pic."

I didn't know it. And some of you Anselfrace bachelor Billys that didn't know it, either, in your letters to me—they can't. Oh, doleful doubters, I have seen!

They are all in white—dead-light white that follows the lines of their bodies—from knuckles to shoulders, where the plain sleeves hold, to their black-pumped feet and black splashes of plumes and butterfly bows in their darling, fly-away hats.

ANNABELLE WHITFORD.

"THERE ARE BILLYS, TOO, AND THEY'VE LOCKS OVER ONE EYE!"

They are white lines, and black gobs of ink. And the kinds of them! Haughty, gloomy Bettys; and gay, sassy ones; and dreaming, ardent-eyed ones; big sad-eyed ones, and just little sweet, sweet ones.

And one of the sweet, sweetest ones is the bulliest Bettina of the bunch, and I are love her. Her name is May Murray, and she's exquisite! I might have made her myself, with my pen point and a piece of clean cardboard. She's little, little. And her waist is not tight and small.

Her nose turns up in wonderful fashion, and her mouth pouts; her eyes are big and lazy, and her lows delicate, but square, square! And she puts up her chin and her frail shoulders, and spreads out her pink fingers and arches her brows in high, jaunty indolence, and stands with flattened hips, like a lazy-boned hog.

Oh, she's a ripping Bettina! Her face is a Betty face, and her wonderful poses of hands and head and knees and shoulders are "pics," my "pics." I might have made her.

But they are all clever—these Bettys in "The Follies of 1908," at the New York Theatre roof, that are named "Nell Brinkley Bettys"—all clever, and very wonderful, and I like them.

And there are Billys, too! And they've got locks over one eye!

NELL BRINKLEY.

Good Luck in Honeymoons

Best Fortune That Can Come to the Newly Married

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A NUMBER of women of St. Louis have established what they call a firm to promote good luck for honeymooners.

The sole assets of the firm appear to be quantities of rice, old shoes and good wishes.

Everyone is the better for the good wishes of the community and rice and old shoes do no harm, so the business will at least be harmless.

The good luck that honeymooners need most is confidence in each other, perfect friendship, tact and infinite love and patience.

That is a good long list, but it takes contented life, with children around the hearthstone, is the very best luck that can come to any man or woman. Fortunately, that is a species of luck by no means uncommon.

I know a woman who is married to a millionaire who is absorbed in business and sport. They have no children, and the woman lives in magnificent loneliness. Would you call her a lucky woman?

A Tip for the Honeymoon Firm

I know another woman who lives in the dearest little cottage in a suburban town. Her husband, a young lawyer, earns a comfortable, modest living, and they have two of the sweetest babies I have ever seen. I call her a remarkably lucky woman.

The best thing that the good luck fairy to love each other, to live a happy, can come to any man or woman. Fortunately, that is a species of luck by no

TO PRESERVE EGGS

WHEN eggs are cheapest take a butter firkin or box and put in a layer of salt, then stand (small point down as many eggs as you can, then add another layer of salt and so on until you use all the eggs. Finish with salt on top. Do not uncover more eggs than you need at a time. When eggs are scarce or expensive you will have fresh eggs. I have preserved them many times. MRS. HENRIETTA McCABE.

BAKED SPICED APPLES

PEEL and core some tart apples and fill the cavities with brown sugar; put two whole cloves in each and dust with powdered cinnamon. Bake covered in a moderate oven, basting frequently with hot water to which has been added one tea, spoon of butter, one tablespoon of lemon juice and a bit of grated lemon rind.

COMFORT AT GRATIN.

Four boiling water over one cup of finely shredded suet codfish and keep hot for two hours, then drain. Add two cups of hot mashed potatoes, two cups of cream or rich milk, half a cup of melted butter, two beaten eggs and pepper and salt to taste. Mix well, turn into a buttered baking dish, cover with crumbs, dot with bits of butter and bake until brown.

MRS. E. V. JENKINS.

No. 79 Beacon street, Somerville.

QUICK BISCUITS

TO begin with, a hot oven is needed; next the flour must be sifted. Roll dough as soft as you can handle. For each teacup of flour, a teaspoon of baking powder is added; butter, size of walnut is sufficient. After rubbing butter and powder into the amount of flour used, turn in cold water (or milk, stirring all the time till the dough is soft as you can handle. Add a little salt, roll lightly, shape and bake at once. The quantity may be increased as you wish, provided directions are followed. These biscuits are delicious, and prove flaky, feathery, and more nutritious than biscuits raised with yeast. They are worth trying. MRS. M. O'CONNELL.

No. 45 Linwood street, Somerville.

BLUEBERRY CAKE

TWO cups of flour, one cup of sugar, one teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of baking soda, two teaspoons of cream of tartar, stiff all together into a batter (cold). Add two cups of blueberries, two eggs dropped in one cup of milk and melted butter size of an egg; add to the other ingredients and mix. Bake in a moderate oven.

The "Send-off" That Promises Honeymooners the Greatest Happiness.

all of those qualities to make a perfect marriage.

A good many girls labor under the impression that in marrying a man with good looks, money and social position they are making the luckiest of marriages.

Luckiest of All Honeymooners

But the girl that marries a man that is honest, manly and kind is the luckiest bride of all; and the man that marries a pretty, lovable, capable girl is the luckiest man of all bridegrooms.

prospective brides and bridegrooms: "Don't marry unless you are quite sure that you can't be happy unless you do marry him. Don't marry unless you have a strong respect for each other; don't marry unless might and that it is foolish to marry unless either side is willing to live up to the rule of give and take.

The world is full of people who ought to be happy, but who are not, simply because each side refuses to recognize the other's rights and limitations.

Be your own good luck, young people. Use common sense, as well as love, in your selection of a life partner and you will all be lucky and happy as the day is long.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

NO RIGHT TO MARRIED MAN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-six years of age and a short time ago I married a man of thirty-three. I married him for a home. He is good to me, but I do not love him. I love a married man and have loved him for five years. He said he loved me up to a few weeks ago, but turned me down, and in desperation I married a man whom I can never love. He is unrefined, uneuphemized, comes of very common clay and his manner is very common. I saw my married man friend just before I married and he wanted me to give up my present husband and go to Europe with him. I am unhappy and don't know what to do. Please advise a broken-hearted woman.

CONSTANCE.

ANY woman who marries a man under the circumstances you describe deserves what she gets and ought to stick the tighter to her bargain. You have no right to the married man, but you need not have been dishonorable enough to marry the other just because you quarreled with the first. Of course it will be hard for you to live with the man you do not care for, but you should have seen all his faults before marriage. He is no less refined and cultured than he was before you married him, and the clay of which he and his mother are made has not changed in quality since then. Whatever you decide to do love, as regards sticking to your bargain, remember that you have no shadow of a right to the other man.

MIGHT BE A LONG WAIT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of twenty-four and am deeply in love with a young man ten years my senior. Now, I don't know if this man cares for me or not, but I imagine he does. I have known him about a year, but see him very seldom. My father and mother are anxious for me to be married, as I have several other offers, but I do not care for them. My father is poor for God a good deal of trouble lately financially, and when I see him and it just breaks my heart. Should I accept the attentions of these men I can really never love, or should I wait, perhaps just to see him marry some other girl? If I was sure he cared for me I would be willing to wait and fight it out, regardless of what my parents should say. HEARTBROKEN.

IF you could bring yourself to care for some other man, I think you would be wise to do so. If this man is financially depressed, it may be a long time before he can marry, and even then, as you say, he may marry some other girl. Do not encourage him unless you love him, and the clay of which he and his but do not try to steel your heart against all others, as this man may never seek your love.

The Parting of the Ways

"ELEVEN o'clock," murmured the man. "Well, Elsie will be home soon now, but I won't wait up."

He went to bed, but not to sleep. The fact that his little girl was attending her first grown-up party made him wakeful and thoughtful, for it was hard for him to reconcile himself to the idea of his baby Elsie turning into a young woman. Twelve o'clock!

He wished that she were asleep in the small crib beside his bed, where he had rocked her night after night during the first six years of her happy little life. But of course he could not make her a baby again.

Half past 12!

If she could only have stayed a schoolgirl a few years longer that would have been a comfort and she might have done it just as well as not. It was really only a matter of the length of her skirts. They had been suddenly lowered in the Spring from her shoe tops to within an inch or so of the floor and Elsie had gayly announced that she was grown up. Of course, it was all nonsense. She wasn't grown up, even though she pulled her thick, shiny hair so high on her pretty head. One o'clock.

Why didn't she come? In the morning he would ask her to shorten her skirts again and wear her hair in braids as she used to. She must go back and be a schoolgirl again for a while. She was too young to be going out to late parties. The clock was striking half past one.

Something must have happened to the child. He ought to have gone with her; he hadn't been to a ball since his college days. That chaperon he had trusted her with must be very lax. Nearly 2 o'clock!

There, thank goodness, was her step on the stair.

"Is that you, Elsie?"

"Yes, daddy, dear."

"Why"—in a tone of deep sarcasm—"why did you come home so early?"

"I did hate to leave the party, daddy, but I was afraid you'd worry about me."

"Oh!"

"And, daddy, as you are awake, may I come in and sit on the edge of your bed? I want to tell you. May I stay a little while?"

"Yes, child, but you ought to be in bed. Little girls need their sleep."

"Your little girl has something—something to tell you, daddy. Jack wanted to speak to you to-morrow, but I said I wanted to tell you first. You know I have always told you everything first and this time it's such a big, strange, happy thing to tell. It's—well, daddy, you know—it's Jack and me. We love each other."

"The young rascal!"

"Now, daddy, you know you like him best of all the boys who come here."

"Let me see, this is all foolishness. You're a baby yet, dear."

"A baby of nineteen! Why, daddy, dear, you forgotten. I'm a whole year older than mother was when she—but she was taken away from us, and—and I have to stay."

"There's no going back? Oh, is there no going back?"

"What, daddy, what do you mean? Why do you speak so oddly? Your voice sounds as though you—and"

"It's nothing, dear. I was dreaming before I woke that we could still have our lives back for a little while at least, and it's hard to wake up to the fact that we cannot."

"But I wouldn't want to, daddy. Just think how much there is to look forward to, and that is coming to be even more beautiful."

"Run along, child. Good night, Elsie, daughter. Run away to bed and to happy dreams. Jack's a fine boy, and God bless you."

"And Jack, daddy?"

"Yes, and—and Jack, of course, God bless Jack."

Moving lightly down the hall with the first stirring in the house that told that the girl could not hear the lonely man she had left behind, the man broke down. "There's no turning back—no turning back! Oh, my baby girl!"

Dress to Match Eyes

IN colors women should dress to suit their eyes. There is a certain type of blonde to whom nothing is so becoming as a warm, rich shade of red. It lights up her hair and eyes and gives color to an otherwise colorless complexion. A touch of light red should be included in every hat and gown in her possession. Another girl will find that chocolate browns and black browns are not to be avoided to give her eyes that soft, shadowy effect which is her most valuable asset. Another with colorless hair and eyes will always appear at her best in a gown of ecru with touches of pale gold and brown. A woman with sallow skin should always avoid black. Only a skin of matchless purity can stand such clear tints as cerise or turquoise or peacock blue.

The Manicure Lady

Letters on Marital Unrest Touch Her Sense of Humor

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"HERE'S some more letters that was wrote to "Wilfred about the married couples being unhappy," said the Manicure Lady.

"Ain't you ever going to stop reading me them letters?" demanded the Head Barber.

"This is the last time," said the Manicure Lady. "I hate to be pestering you, George, because I know that barbers is the very busy men in the hot weather, when the walkers grows so fast, but I really must hand you this lot of literature.

"Wilfred says that the editor of the Bronx Bazoo is font tickled that he went out last night and acted awful. Wilfred got his rules, too.

"I don't know how you feel about it, George, but I'm awful fond of humor. Every time I get a good laugh the world looks like a better and brighter place in which to live in. There's letters which Wilfred got from some of the popular society ladies and gents in Harlem will give you a chuckle, or else you ain't the good sport I always thought you was. Give a listen:

No Chance for a Quarrel.

"Dear Mr. Editor—Regarding your question about seven married couples out of eight being happy, I beg to state that it ain't so. Me and John has been married eight years, and there ain't a chance in the world for us to have a quarrel. I never speak to him. Honest, that you are saying the best of health, I am, dear sir, your obedient and respectful servant,

"SOPHY SLEWFOOT."

Always Happy When Asleep.

"Dear Editor—I think that seven out of eight couples is happy seven hours out of twenty-four. I think everybody ought to have at least seven hours of sleep. Thine till the end. "NORMA."

"Absence Makes the Heart," Etc.

"Dear Editor—I don't know anything about the seven out of eight being happy, but I do know that I have been happy as the day for the past two weeks. My husband went over to Cape Cod, and he is away in the White Mountains. We are happy, Bo and that is the truth. Goodbye, dear. Give my regards to Mrs. Sweeney, and don't sing till you hear from mub.

"LITTLE EVA."

Best Little Wife Ever Was.

"Dear Editor—Referring to your question about married people, I wish to state that my wife and I are as happy as two geese. It is true that at times the sky looks kind of cloudy, but as soon as it comes to the surface, transforming me into a modern Frank-stein, and at such times I wallop my wife in the neck until she yells for help, but she is the best little fellow you ever saw, and she doesn't mind. Come up to the house some night and take dinner with us. Give us a day's notice, so I can see neighbors and have them bring in some food. "JUKE LEPPINGWELL."

One More in the Happy Column

"Dear Editor—Are we happy? Well, I guess! Matrimony, matrimony, yes, yes, yes! Mr. Editor, I am only a poor collegiate graduate, and my wife has to take in plain and fancy sewing to keep us happy; but in there with the old needle, and life, to us, is a flash of sunlight spread over twenty-four hours. I am very attentive to the dear little thing, and when she is sewing I always read aloud to her.

"She ignores partners. Some day, when she gets out the needle and the spool of white thread I read her "The Song of the Shirt." She thinks the world of me, and she ought to. It isn't every married man that would read aloud to his wife when she is sewing. Put me down in the happy column. "HAROLD."

Divided Over Baseball

Expert Hints on Beauty

BY THE PROFESSOR

STUBBORN FRECKLES

DEAR PROFESSOR:

About a year ago I wrote you asking for a good lotion to remove very dark freckles. You advised me to use the following: Two ounces of rosewater, 2 grains of bichloride of mercury, 2 ounces of witch hazel, which I did, and though it helped some, I hardly think it will remove my freckles, as they are very dark. Is perxide good for whitening the skin? I heard that it was harmful. Is this true? O. M. Y.

IT may be that there is an excess of some material in the blood which causes the spots and a physician would be able to find out for you. Did you persist in the use of the lotion named? It is necessary in cases like yours to be very faithful to the treatment and to keep out of the sun and wind at all times, as new freckles will come as fast as you get rid of others unless you are exceedingly careful. Everything that destroys freckles makes the skin just that much more susceptible to the influences which produce them.

MORE FRECKLES.

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please tell me of something that will remove freckles. I have tried everything with no success. Any remedy or advice will be thankfully received. FRECKLES.

SEE letter signed O. M. Y., which contains a formula for stubborn freckles.

Slim Woman Wins.

Style is feminine power. Granted. The thinner one is the more stylish," say the dressmakers. Then to be powerful or attractive as a female, one must be a slender female. This would have been sad news for the fat woman a year ago, but today she is not so sad. The fat reducing problem is not so terrible. Dieting and exercising that failed her before can be dispensed with, for now she has Marmola Prescription Tablets, an effective quantity of which costs only 75 cents, to fall back on. As these have reduced thousands of women all over the United States without causing wrinkles, stomach distress, or the least interference with one's habits, there is every promise of success. A tablet after each meal and another when retiring is all most fat folks find necessary to take off a pound a day. All first-class druggists are familiar with and fill the following prescription, viz.: 1½ ounces Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Amarella and 3½ ounces Syrup Simplex, and as these tablets are an exact duplicate of the Marmola prescription they may, of course, be taken with perfect confidence by anyone. Full directions and formula are contained in each package, and are doubtless what the above mentioned prescription gives women in your particular circle of friends.

By a Woman Hater

IT'S as hard for women to keep money as secrets.

Nothing melts a dignified girl like an unspected kiss.

Most people in love act as if it were a delightful torture.

Some women worry about the worries they'll be missed.

The most changeable thing in the world is a woman. The next is another woman.

Life isn't much of a burden to the woman who looks younger than she is.

When a man and woman quarrel the man has an excuse and the woman has her because.

No matter how homely a girl may be, she doesn't think people justified in describing her in plain language.

On the quiet, did you ever attempt to get even with your enemies by introducing them to your wife's relations.

A girl will forgive a young man for kissing her, but she'll never forgive him if he doesn't.

INTERESTS FOR 'L' ENGINEER IN SENATE FIGHT

Hultman Selected to Defeat Jenney in the First Norfolk District.

ABUTTERS' BILL STIRS WAR

That the Massachusetts street railways are out against Senator Charles P. Jenney of Hyde Park, "the lawyer of the Senate," and will seek to defeat his third-term aspirations, is the story feverishly given to the voters of the First Norfolk Senatorial District to-day by agile press agents.

If Senator Jenney is renominated by a Republican district he will enter the fight for President of the Senate with Jennes B. Shaw of Manchester-by-the-Sea and the Lorraine, Boston and Elmer A. Stevens of Somerville.

The street railway combine will not be opposed to Shaw, erstwhile head of the Boston & Worcester trolley line, and Shaw says the "interests" are for him. The next president of the Senate, Shaw says, is already "chose." His name, Shaw says—banking on the "interests"—is Shaw.

Like Wire for Jenney.

The thing that has turned the live wire on to Senator Jenney, it was said to-day, is his two-year steadfast championship of an abutters' bill, for the relief of people whose lands are encroached upon by trolley companies. The bill has not become a law, it is true, but Senator Jenney still thinks well of it, and the street railway interests, it is said, will be quite as well pleased if the First Norfolk elects Mr. Jenney to stay at home. The "no-third-term" slogan is being used against him.

The Jenney district is made up of Braintree, Canton, Holbrook, Hyde Park, Milton, Quincy, Randolph and Weymouth.

Eugene C. Hultman of Quincy, who contests the First Norfolk senatorship with Jenney, is an engineer at "101 Milk street, Boston. This is also the address of the Boston Elevated Railway Company. Hultman is a "Tech" man. He is a member of the Quincy Republican City Committee and he has just completed his third term in the House of Representatives. Hultman is thirty-three years old; Jenney is forty-eight.

Hard to Please the "interests."

If there is any truth in the report that the street railways are to "do" Senator Jenney, it was also said to-day, ambitious politicians ought to begin to realize just how hard it is to please the "interests." Senator Jenney was a stout Senate champion of the Merger bill, he helped to give the French King Rapids Company the rights in perpetuity in the Connecticut River at Northfield, he was against the peaceful picketing bill, and against all such bills as the anti-injunction bill, etc., etc., etc.

There is said to be a ray of light for Senator Jenney in the Senate candidacy at Quincy of former Representative Richard Freeman.

"Smiling Jim" Shaw, the Manchester millionaire, claims, meanwhile, that he and the next presidency of the Senate settled up fully two months before the late session was ended.

STARVATION OR JUNK LICENSES, SAY LYNN JEWS

Declaring that fifty families would be starved in case relief were not granted, a general mass meeting of the Hebrews of Lynn has been called for 8 o'clock this evening in Lasters' Hall in Andrew street, Lynn, to protest against the refusal of the Board of Aldermen to grant junk collecting licenses to Hebrews of that city.

About sixty Hebrews applied for licenses and upon their being refused feeling ran high, with the result of the call for the mass meeting this evening.

A number of the most prominent Hebrew speakers of Lynn and several other cities will be present to make addresses. The entire Hebrew element in Lynn is expected to be present at the meeting to-night.

WIFE OPENS JAIL, TO FREE HUSBAND

SERGENT, Ky., Aug. 12.—Dressed in men's clothes near the hour of midnight, Mary Moore, alleged wife of Charlie Moore, murderer, bigamist, alias Willie Jones, Willie Cantrell and Henry Wells, stole from her boarding house, and with an iron crowbar pried with the strength of a giant until she effected the release from the county jail of her husband and three other prisoners charged with petty offences.

SEEKS MISSING WIFE AND CHILD.

Mrs. Edwin N. Bates, wife of Dr. Bates of East Weymouth, and their four-year-old son, John W. Bates, 2d, who disappeared after a court hearing, at which Mrs. Bates accused her husband of cruelty. They are now eagerly sought by Dr. Bates.

NEWS OF THE THEATRES.

Good vaudeville acts and pretty burlesque girls are features of the bill at the Palace Theatre this week. It is one of the best of the season.

"The Blacksmailers of New York," at the Grand Opera House, is a play that has sensations in every act. The oven scene is a bit of realism that makes the audience shout.

George E. Lothrop and Jay Rime of the Bowdoin Square and Howard theatres are home again, after a trip abroad. Mr. Rimt engaged some high-class vaudeville acts for the old Howard next season.

"The Pauper's Heiress" is drawing well at the Bowdoin Square, and just suits those who like pathos and action on the stage. Next week Charlotte Hunt will appear in "How London Lives."

"The Best Man" has scored at the Majestic Theatre, where theatre patrons say it is an ideal Summer entertainment. James Leo Finney is seen to great advantage in the leading role.

Big Crowds at Wonderland.

The attendance at Wonderland is the best-sustained that this city of entertainment by the sea could receive. The great pleasure park interests everybody who goes there.

One of the features at the Boston Theatre this week is "Our Boys in Blue," a military act in which seventeen veterans of the Spanish War fire the patriotic heart by their remarkable drill.

J. W. Gorman's wonderful diving horses are among the magnets which draw the crowds to Norumbega Park, where the theatre is an agreeable structure. There are many attractions besides those on the stage. Sandy Chapman is at the Hub Theatre, and he and the usual attractions of this popularly patronized house are pleasing daily and nightly those who like good music and action pictures.

Raymond Hitchcock and "The Merry-Go-Round" are a combination that could not fail to make the Colonial Theatre a Mecca for all who like song and laughter.

Lexington Zoo Popular.

The Zoological Gardens at Lexington Park are only one of many things at this popular resort that pay a patron to make a pleasant journey.

Paragon Park, with its fine band, free attractions and famous Palm Garden, is a tempting place to spend an afternoon or evening in hot August weather. The sail down the harbor and back is a little sea voyage that cannot be surpassed.

The Star Theatre has a bill that would draw a packed house even if it was not such a cool and comfortable place on a hot day.

"Wine, Woman and Song" continues to be one of the most favored attractions that ever came to please Boston entertainment seekers. It has been given by a company of exceptional talent.

Record-breaking cod and haddock are being captured every day on the Satellite, the new steamer for the deep-sea fishing grounds. A prize is awarded for heaviest catch.

The steamer King Philip goes daily to the deep sea fishing grounds. Women and children are especially cared for. Lines, bait and chowder are supplied.

DOCTOR TO FILE CROSS SUIT IN DIVORCE CASE

Accused of Cruelty at Court Hearing, Now Seeks Missing Wife and Babe.

CONTINUE CASE TO OCT. 1

Special to the Boston American.

QUINCY, Aug. 13.—Dr. Edwin N. Bates, a dentist of Commercial street, East Weymouth, and a cousin of former Governor John L. Bates, is to-day hunting for his pretty brunette wife, Mrs. Eleanor C. Bates, who disappeared yesterday afternoon after having charged her husband in the East Weymouth District Court with assault and battery. The doctor wants to find his little four-year-old son, John W. Bates, 2d, whom he thinks is with his wife.

After the hearing before Judge Albert E. Avery, when the doctor positively denied the charge of cruelty, he told a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN that his wife had entered suit for divorce against him. He also said that he intended to enter a cross suit and that he would name a prominent Weymouth dentist in his suit.

Clad in a becoming blue skirt, white shirt waist and modish picture hat, Mrs. Bates told Judge Avery that she and her husband had married on Dewey Day, Friday, October 13, 1899, in Boston. She said that for the past two years he had been cruel to her and had called her names and that on last Thursday morning he had broken her and torn her shirt waist. She said that Dr. Joseph Chase, Jr., had attended her.

Doctor On Witness Stand.

Dr. Chase testified that he had been called to attend Mrs. Bates and that her shirtwaist had been torn. There was a red bruise on Mrs. Bates's left temple. Then the shirtwaist was offered in testimony. Mrs. Bates was not represented by counsel.

Attorney Pattee appeared for Dr. Bates, who pleaded not guilty. The court bound him in $300 to keep the peace until October 1, to which time the hearing was continued.

"I don't want revenge," cried Mrs. Bates when she had been called to the stand for the second time, tears suffusing her eyes. "I don't want to have him found guilty and fined or imprisoned, but all I want is protection. I want him to be made to leave me alone."

"I did not treat my wife cruelly or abuse her," said Dr. Bates to-day.

"After my mother died about three years ago we removed to Weymouth from Boston, where my wife still ran our Boston office.

Father Left Old Home.

"I set up an office in this house, where my father had lived for fifty years. About a year ago my father left the house and went to live in Boston. He did not tell me why until his trouble broke. He gave up his clerkship with the Weymouth assessors, which he had held for forty years, and the presidency of the Weymouth Savings Bank, all because of this matter.

"I became suspicious after a time that things were not all well. I talked with my wife but got no satisfaction. My duties as leader of Bates band of Weymouth and other bands took me away from home often. Last week I was away two days.

"My father told me that my wife had sold on August 1 when I was in Hanover that she was going to get out of the house. Last Tuesday, one week after, she wanted to move some dental furniture to Boston, but I forbade her doing it.

"Tuesday afternoon, one week ago, when I came home from Boston I found that she removed the dental furniture. Wednesday I played in Boston and came home tired. She locked herself in her bedroom with the baby, and the next morning ordered me to get some things at the store for breakfast.

Firearms of Days of '76.

"I took the baby with me. The baby stepped into her room on our return and asked her why she had locked me out. She said I had put the child up to this and she grabbed a small Colt revolver and aimed it at me. I took it from her, and in the struggle her waist was torn. As I backed out of the room she threw an old army pistol at me, hitting me on the knee. Then she grabbed a muskroon and I left."

In Dr. Bates's house are more than 1,500 different kinds of firearms dating from the Revolutionary period to the present, his father's collection. The doctor was the expert on firearms who arranged the cats, logue for the government's exhibition of firearms for the St. Louis Purchase Exposition.

NEWSBOY WINNERS OF THE AMERICAN PRIZES YESTERDAY

Reading from top to bottom the boys are: Joseph Weinstein, Charles Peniello and David Beresofsky.

NEWSIES STILL HUSTLING FOR DAILY PRIZES

Here are the pictures of three bright, hustling boys whom you have probably seen a hundred times, and probably one of them is your own regular newsboy. These pictures were secured by the BOSTON AMERICAN Camera Man on his daily trip through the city for energetic newsboys who display the BOSTON AMERICAN.

These boys cover a wide area on Boston's busiest street—Joseph Weinstein is the cheerful little lad who sanctions the canons of people with AMERICANS at the corner of Washington and Boylston street. He is only twelve years old, and lives at No. 5 Charles street. Travelling with his two companions he will to-day receive the AMERICAN prize of $1 for displaying the AMERICAN.

The other two lads are Charles Peniello and David Beresofsky. Charles gets rid of hundreds of copies of the AMERICAN to the crowds at Adams square. He is also twelve years old, and lives at No. 1 Webster place. David is the same age as his two companions, and takes care of the people who pass his corner at Elm and Washington streets on their way to and from the North Station. He lives at No. 50 Salem street.

SOLD LIQUOR; FINED $75.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

PYTHIAN CHIEF PRAISES WORK OF BIG STORE

The Houghton & Dutton Company has been complimented on the beauty and taste of its store decorations during Knights of Pythias convention week by Grand Chancellor George W. Penniman. He has written the management of the great department store as follows:

Houghton & Dutton Company, Boston, Gentlemen: The Knights of Pythias of Massachusetts, and thousands of our guests who have participated in the festivities of our "Pythian week," have been delighted with the evidence of interest as shown in the elaborate decorations throughout the city.

It gives me sincere pleasure to express to you our grateful appreciation of your efforts in decorations. The display you made—with its beautiful and artistic arrangement of the colors of our order, interlaced with the colors of our national emblem and the figures representing Damon and Pythias, then combined with the electrical illuminations, made your corner most attractive, and we have heard words of praise expressed by the order and their friends from every section of the land. Nothing better or more characteristic of Pythian Knighthood could be shown in decorations at a supreme lodge convention.

In the name of 24,000 Pythian Knights of Massachusetts, I thank you.

With all good wishes, I am, very truly yours,
GEORGE W. PENNIMAN,
Grand Chancellor.

HUB FANS HONOR WORLD'S BEST TWIRLER TODAY

CARPENTER EXPLAINS HIS RACE

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—John C. Carpenter of Cornell University, who was disqualified in the 400-metre race at the recent Olympian games and eleven others of the American athletes, who contested, returned to New York today on the White Star line steamship Majestic.

Mr. Carpenter declared he would have won the event fairly if it had not been called off by the judges, but he seemed to be of the opinion that the British were possessed of much more fairness than they had been given credit for.

"When I was one hundred and twenty feet from the tape," he added, "the judges declared that I elbowed Halswell and attempted to pocket him. I will not say that I did, for I do not remember, but that is one of the excitements of the sport and is permitted in every country under the sun.

"I think the race should have been given to me, and it undoubtedly would have been mine were it not for the ignorance of those in charge of the games.

"As to the contestants themselves, I want to say I never met a fairer crowd of men. They treated us with every consideration, but the judges were ignorant and there was a great deal of feeling about the 400-metre race before it was run. Some of the newspapers came out with a story saying that Halswell would be thrown Ausel runs in the event as against one Britisher, and it was hoped that we would give a more fair play. Naturally when this feeling was abroad, we might expect that there would be some trouble. Another of the papers said I was in Halswell's pocket and would not let him pass. I certainly would have been a fine looking fool to have got out of the way of another contestant when I myself was doing all in my power to keep ahead."

Others of the athletes on board the Majestic were Forrest Smithson, who won the long hurdle, breaking the world's record; J. A. Rector, who finished second in the 100 metres; Harry Hillman, who finished second in the 400-metre hurdles; E. T. Cooke, who tied with Gilbert in the pole vault; W. G. Burroughs of the Carnegie A. C.; M. Giegengack of the New York Athletic Club; M. A. H. Giffin of Indiana; H. A. Gibney of Boston and John J. Dreyer of the New York Athletic club.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

Doc Newton, the ex-Yankee, and his hoodoo have got company. At Hartford's game with Montreal the doctor struck out ten batters. For five innings he plunked two circuits to the fences, and in the fifth retired the side on strikes. Despite this good ten work, the team was defeated.

It's hard to be a good finish. One can find hundreds of fans who believe that Phillies will win the pennant. Other managers are of the opinion that the Athletics will be found among the leaders, and Philadelphia, the Giants are not strong enough to win the flag. Everybody is talking about the club being fallen to the thought in the cause of this.

Big sleepy looking Bill Byrne of Washington, Americans is a man who seldom finds himself upsets an injury. He Lee Angeles acquaintance not predicting that soon out of the hospital Billinger will make a pretty wager for his release, whose attack with a ball bat as a weapon, was responsible for sending Burns to the Red Cross establishment.

Boston wants Detroit to take and keep Winter. The Tigers would have a much stronger team than then with Summers and Winter, a very strong pair that it would be hard to get by in the league.

Monte Cross and Tim Flood, new managers in the American Association, have got off to a good start in the matter of building up their clubs. Frank Isbell, the Chicago White Sox star, is wanted for some other Yellow Sox back-field man.

The Washington club is to be reinforced by one Fray Lamabee, a promising shortstop, who is said to be a wonderful ball player. Lamabee is from Kansas City, and is a brother of Jack Lamabee, who is the best he has under all circumstances. He keeps everlastingly at it, and does not quit on account of the word "duck." And what's a big, good catcher in baseball without that quality? Not many things in life.

The Cleveland club has purchased Grover Land, the hard-hitting catcher of the Toledo club. Land will join the Cleveland team when the close of the American Association season. Land is one of the most promising young catchers in the country, and is a big husky fellow, full of vigor, and has an abundance of ginger. He is a good man to have on the bunch.

Great outfielders come up in plenty, but there are no more Mertes. Hardly a day goes by marvelous methods of conducting the baseball business are unfolded to the world.

Catcher Bush are in plenty, but the human all traps disappear when the question of batting, batting and Tom Parker be the center of the whole affair.

Base runners are included in the misers of every team, but where can be found a man like Harry Glover, who in one season deliberately pilfered more than 140 bases?

Germany Schaefer comes the nearest of any of the modern players to duplicating Arlie Latham's clownish but always entertaining antics on the diamond, but even Schaefer, at his best, lacks Arlie's sparkling humor and his spontaneous drollishness that threw a halo around the game.

Jack Warner, the veteran catcher, has secured an option on the baseball rights to Seattle, and he still hopes to do things so that he will be able to get back into the game. Jack's friends wish him luck through all the big arena and wants to be able to get back into baseball circles before his team.

COLLINS ON HAND TO COVER M'LEAN'S FORFEIT

That Elmer Collins considers himself even so much a champion as Hugh McLean is by his claim that was evidently his action in covering the latter's forfeit to bind the match race which is scheduled for that event at the Revere track, the distance to be twenty miles.

Ernest J. Collins, representing his brother who is in Yellowstone, N. P., where he had an engagement to race Jimmy Morran, and Eddie Root, came to the BOSTON AMERICAN office yesterday and deposited with the Sporting Editor $100 in cash, and the like amount which MacLean put up the day before.

He said: "I just want to show Mac-Lean that we are not at all afraid to meet him, as Elmer is just as confident as ever that he can beat him again as he did last Saturday night, and, furthermore, at any distance. While a match race has been made at twenty miles, Collins is ready to make it thirty, as he showed in the race against Morgan and Butler that he would go the full distance just as well as a shorter route."

MacLean evidently believed himself unbeatable till he ran up against Elmer in his best form, just because he got him immediately after his return from abroad, but he will find that he will have to ride faster than he ever did in his life to win from Collins on Saturday night.

"I wanted to cover that forfeit of MacLean's to prove that we mean business just as much as MacLean, and if he wants any side bets he will get all he can handle, as the Lynn followers of Elmer are willing to back him for any amount."

AMERICAN TELLS OF BAD FEELING AT OLYMPIAD

The following letter is of especial interest to the American public at this moment, as it bears out the reports of the returning Olympian athletes in regard to the unfair treatment they received at the hands of the English public and press. The letter comes from an American who was present at the games. The quoted clippings were sent by the same gentleman and show plainly the manner in which the English press belittled the Yankee athletes' victories, and even tried to take away the credit of winning the Marathon from this country by referring to John J. Hayes as an Irishman personal and an Irish American.

LONDON, Aug. 1, 1908.

Sporting Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I once thought the policy of indicating to a doubting public the true nature of British boor (by British is meant the height of exaggeration, I have, however, since, twice visited England, London in particular, and can now only say, forgive me for my imperfection of the word).

That the average Englishman is a cad and a coward, had been, in general, admitted. But that such galling bitterness, coupled with contempt should rankle in English breasts against their American cousins, as was shown at the Olympic games is at first unbelievable, though a cold fact.

The obvious discourtesy to our boys, coupled with unfair decisions, the careful suppression of our flag from the scheme of decoration of the Stadium (two flags were, however, finally placed inconspicuously among the hundreds of others), is a matter of common knowledge.

But as a last straw—the Marathon race! Such childish excuses for the failure of the English runners!

"It was too beastly hot, you know."

"One would have finished but for a 'stitch' in his knee."

"Another would surely have won except his legs gave out."

They were "all in" English so rushed by the Yankees that they were completely fagged out, although "Dorando" was moderate. Hefferton "would have won but that someone slapped him on the back and gave him a glass of champagne."

If Hefferton is therefore an Englishman, anyway. The Canadians are, of course, British subjects. Even the Americans are "of the family, though in the spare household," says Sir Conan Doyle in the Mail (they, the son of a Cork artisan, therefore Irish, ergo United Kingdom, hence virtually British, too? Yes, I think). Where will they stop? Perhaps some of Dorando's enthusiastic admirers were English. Had a Kaffir won, he, too, would surely have been hailed as a true Englishman.

Hark!

Then Dorando's progress around the track of the Stadium I have never witnessed a more astounding sight. Tears welled up to my eyes as he fell time and again. Every true sportsman in the house wanted that plucky little Italian to be first over the tape. One paper says that "it was neither an Italian nor an Englishman who assisted Dorando, thereby disqualifying him." Ah, ha—they leave you to deduce—not an American, no doubt, and a dirty Yankee trick. Whereas the men concerned were no others than Mr. Bulger and J. M. Andrews, chief clerk of the course, who took entire charge of the case. The latter's equivocal statements to the contrary notwithstanding. Such supreme incompetence!

Dorando is hailed as the "moral victor." Do facts, if not do jure," says Her Gracious Majesty the Queen, and presents a cup, etc. "He would have won if left alone." Great (English) cheers and ominous.

No. 2. Slave was also cheered."

Dorando is interviewed and feted. Music hall suggestions, etc., etc. All of which to make it appear that the winner was none one but the Americans. No word of Hayes's magnificent performance and perfect form, and Forshaw and Welton. "The Queen applauds the Canadians' coolly fifth, fourth and seventh). And also the love of the grudging admission of a few of the fair papers, and the latest decision that "Dorando would not have finished if left unassisted" upholding the United States protest.

But why continue indefinitely in this strain? Let us improve our time learning ping pong, croquet and fancy dancing for the next Olympiad, so we can give John Bull the athletic he needs. Yours, lugubriously,

H. P. J.

(A hated Yankee.)

GIANTS' NEW INFIELDER.

The Giants will have a new infielder in Pfeffer, who was purchased from the Dallas club of the Texas League. He will report in a few days. McGraw got steel from this Spring while the giants were dodging Northern down there, but going with men of the stamp of Johnny Carroll of New York and six more with Frank Maucell of Pawtucket, should make his task a formidable one of defeating both on the same day.

Two games men than Carroll and Mantell would be hard to find and they have no hesitation in facing Pople in spite of his reputation. Carroll has already fought Papke in his own State, but met defeat in four rounds, but he was in no condition to confront such a rival and he had to give away considerable weight. Ever since he has wanted another mill with the cyclone and being one of the hardest punchers in the ring has confidence that he can land on Papke and slow him down.

The fans have long wanted to gaze on Mantell, the lad who covered Benny Mellody and who has been sought for by the biggest clubs in the country and this is the only opportunity they have had to see the promising middleweight.

Carroll arrived in this city yesterday afternoon, and worked out at the Armory A. A. He is looking in fine shape, and will show surprising speed against Papke tonight.

Carroll is far from boastful, but he says in his quiet way that Papke will have his hands full for the first bout surely.

"I do not see why there will even be Papke fness Mantell, the lad from Pawtucket. Mantell realizes that this is the chance in a lifetime, and he has worked hard to get his wind right. He is not only confident that he will stay the limit, but is telling all his friends that he will pull off a second surprise on the sporting world. He was the short end against Henry Melody, yet he won on a knockout over the Charlestown boxer.

There will be five other bouts. Owing to the length of the program the show will commence at 8 p. m. promptly.

The club directors have issued an invitation to the Boston American ball team, especially Cy Young, and the visiting ball players to attend the entertainment.

FORGET HORSE TO ENJOY TRIP DOWN HARBOR

Horsemen make a day party when out for a good time, and the first annual harbor outing of the Dorchester Driving Club was a success in every particular. Nearly all the members of the Dorchesters were included those from other driving clubs in the vicinity of Quincy Boston, which only meant that the list was even more liberal.

Shortly after noon hour the horses and carts gathered at the appointed place on Atlantic avenue, and at the roar of the steamer whistle all were off for the journey around the harbor. In this line of competition of the worst front the captain of the boat took the party fully as done to Worlds as most desired, but as the trip was for the purpose of getting everybody's appetite prepared for the good at Nantasket Point, there was not a kick registered because of the fact that the equine cremation factory was eating full time.

After the hammer throwing event, in which Flanagan's record was in danger, and was won by Sally Wolfson, while, in the meantime, the remaining athletic features were gathered in by John W. Lions, Jr., A. S. Gushee and C. C. Blaney, the party sat down to the feast, which consisted of a Winslow introduced the baking talent.

LOUIS STRANG WILL DRIVE IN THE LOWELL ROAD RACE

BY J. C. KERRISON.

Louis Strang, the winner of ten Briarcliffe, and the man who represented America in the Dieppe race, has been nominated as a contestant in the forthcoming Lowell race, when he will drive the same car that he drove to victory in the Briarcliffe, namely, the Isotta.

President Hedstrom and Vice-President Coctew, who have spent the greater part of the week in New York, have been eminently successful in their efforts in securing Strang and the Isotta, and were fortunate enough to secure entries from the Flint and Simplex companies, meaning the presence here of De Palma and Al Poole, drivers of these two cars respectively.

De Palma has joined the Flint forces, taking the place made vacant by the death of Coffman, while Al Poole, who gained fame as the running mate of the famous Terror, will be at the wheel of the Simplex. All three men have made reputations for themselves, and their entry for the Lowell event means that others will come along in fine shape.

These entries, with the two Knox cars mentioned, are sufficient to insure a good fast race, even though other entries should not be received, which there is every indication that the full limit of twelve cars will be on hand for the start. The two representatives of the Lowell Club can be working night and main, and will certainly produce a good, interesting race.

* * *

The first two entries to be received for the Lowell 250 miles road race are those from the Knox Automobile Company of Springfield, which has nominated two of its big cars for this event. These cars are by no means racing machines, they being stripped stock chassis, of the same character and order as the car which did such good work at Lakewood recently and which by the way has been doing some great stunts in hill climbing contests. Other companies of a shorty make nominations for the big Lowell event, and when President Hedstrom and Vice-President Coctew return from their western trip they will bring back with them information of other contemplations. These two gentlemen, together with Secretary McKenna of the club, have been working night and main to produce a success and they seem to be no question that their efforts will be fittingly crowned.

* * *

Fred Crittenden is nursing a broken right arm, the result of a spill he got in a hack firing starting, crank. It was the other day when a visitor handed the "spit" out of his car, and the accommodating Crittenden undertook to do the same. An advance spark and an unruly crank placed Crittenden hors de-combat for a few days.

* * *

The interest in the Springfield hill climbing contest is reaching fever heat and from present appearances it begins to look as though there will be a record entry list for the climb on September 11. The committee in charge has a large force of men at work getting the hill in proper shape.

The Massachusetts Highway Commission has just made its return to the State Treasurer regarding the number of motor cars registered for the first six months of the present year. The total number amounts to 15,707 and from the registrations there has been turned over to the State $160,782. For some time past cars have been registered at the rate of about fifty a day. Many cars from other States have been among those registered and every one before is such a short space of time has the commission collected such a large sum of money. Since January 1 last 2861 dealers' licenses have been issued and 1,659 motor cycles registered.

* * *

Automobilists who look after their own cars will find that a good washing out will make a considerable difference in the way their engines will run. This should be done about once every two months in the case of a car that is run a fair distance daily. The dirty oil should be drained off and the crank chamber plugs replaced, then plenty of kerosene should be poured in the engine, which should be started up and run for one minute. The kerosene should then be drained off and fresh oil put in the base chamber.

The members of the Louisville Automobile Club at a recent meeting decided to invite W. F. Hendrikus, president of the American Automobile Association, to be the club's guest at the time of the proposed race meet this Fall. The organization is planning to hold a banquet at about the same time as the race meet and the hope to have President Hetchkiss deliver an address on the work accomplished by the American Automobile Association.

The Great Morgan Robbery

[A Thrilling New York Story of Mystery, Romantic Love and Daring Deeds

By JOSEPH O'BRIEN

CHAPTER XIV.

The Key to the Mystery

NORMAN felt as if a hand had reached out of the darkness and clutched his heart when he heard the muffled "chug-chug" of the automobile dying away in the distance.

He was again Fate's plaything. He stood irresolute in the blackness of the room for a moment before he remembered that he had matches in his pocket.

He quickly struck a light and saw before him a large centre table, on which stood a lamp. The table was covered with a white cloth, dishes and a cold supper. Norman lighted the lamp and saw that a box of cigars had been placed beside it. Evidently he was to be well cared for.

With the lamp lighted he turned to survey the room. To his amusement he found neither door nor window. He examined the walls and found panels of iron sheeting, such as is used for fireproof ceilings.

The sheet iron extended clear to the ceiling and was without a break. Norman could not tell through what point he had entered, and there was no means of egress.

He spent an hour examining the strange prison walls and then gave up the task. But he did not despair.

"I suppose some one will be along in a little while," he said to himself. "Anyhow, here's a good supper, and I may as well be comfortable."

Alone in Strange Room

He had not dined, and was hungry. The pepper of cold meat, salad and bread was good. After he had eaten he lighted a cigar and made another exploration of the room.

It was a large apartment, and he knew that it was on the first floor of the old house. Evidently it was used as a dining room or library until the strange fancy of the owner fitted it up thus.

At one end of the room was an iron bed, made up. There were two or three comfortable chairs, but no other furnishings. The bare floor was not unexpected. There were no pictures or other decorations. The whole effect was cheerless.

Norman pounded on the wall and shouted, but there was no response. He was wise enough to see that he made himself. Weary at last, he threw himself into the most comfortable chair and puffed at his cigar, trying to fathom the mystery.

Plainly it was not Nora Harding who had brought him there. She who said he friended him could have no motive in making him a prisoner.

There could be but one other person—John Tarboe. His uncle, he felt certain, had caused him to be confined, and Norman shivered as he recalled the older man's threats.

"It certainly looks as if my worthy uncle has taken a trick this time," he said with bitterness.

Norman noticed that, although there was neither door nor window to the room the air was fresh. He saw also that the smoke from his cigar disappeared into the ceiling and disappeared.

This showed that there must be some provision for ventilation in this apparently sealed chamber, and he made up his mind to investigate.

He tore the clothing from the iron bed, turned it on end and clambered up. Standing on it he could reach the top of the ceiling.

He found that the sheeting of iron ended a foot short of the ceiling, and there was a space of half a foot between the iron and the original walls of the room. This, however, did not offer a chance of escape, but he saw that the roof of the room was not plaster and laths, and he hoped that this might offer a way of escape.

Wearied by his strenuous exertions Norman replaced his bed, made it up afresh and, without undressing, threw himself down to sleep. He was thoroughly tired, and slept several hours.

When he again awoke the lamp was still burning brightly and seated beside the table, slowly puffing a cigarette, was John Tarboe.

Face to Face with Uncle

Norman sprang to his feet. Tarboe looked at him with an amused smile, but said nothing.

The boy surveyed his uncle for a few minutes and his calmness returned to him. He walked over to the table, sat in a chair opposite Tarboe and said:

"Good morning, uncle."

"Good evening, nephew," Tarboe said. "I inferred that I was your guest," said Norman.

"You are," Tarboe answered.

"To what circumstances do I owe this hospitality?"

"Sanity, circumstance—self protection," returned Tarboe. "You see I had to do this to save you from further trouble, and incidentally to protect my own name. If I hadn't taken you out of New York last night you would have been arrested on the charge of murder."

"I think you are lying," Norman said.

Tarboe paid no heed to the remark.

"People have forgotten that I had a nephew who was a thief, and so, very evidently, I had to want them to know that I have a nephew who is a murderer," he went on. "Now, you understand?"

An exclamation from Norman made him stop.

"You are my uncle," said the boy, "but that doesn't excuse everything. If you say such a thing to me again I'll break your head, o'er."

"You are too sensitive," sneered Tarboe.

"That may be, but you know better than any one alive, uncle, that I am neither a thief nor a murderer."

"What do you mean by that?"

"I mean that I think this whole trouble of mine is due to you. I don't know just what you wanted to get rid of me for five years ago, but you did it and I have failed to find out. I don't know yet who killed James Gordon, but I am going to find out and when I find out I will have the law on you up and let you know."

"You are a foolish youth, idiot," Tarboe expected angrily. "Don you know where you are?"

"No. I do not."

"Nor does any one else except the man who brought you here and myself. How do you suppose you are to get away from here if I don't want to release you? You are completely, absolutely in my power. What are you going to do about it?"

"That remains to be seen," Norman replied. "Meanwhile, what are you going to do about it?"

"I am going to give you one more chance, as I did before," Tarboe answered.

"You are going to be a fool again, eh?"

"If you find this chance I don't get a fool from his folly, uncle," Norman said tightly. "That I am getting interested in the little game of yours now, and I don't mind telling you that nothing will induce me to leave New York until I have got it played to a finish."

"You are foolish. I tell you frankly that I am not sure that I want you to go away."

"You may take my offer or not, as you please. You are powerful that you are in my power, and I can do with you as I will. Suppose you were killed here. Who would be wiser?"

"Somebody would be—somebody who knows that I am here. Norman replied, thinking of Nora Harding.

"What good will that do you?"

"It may do me a good deal, but it will do you a lot of harm."

"Well, I am willing to take a chance on your friend. Now, once for all, will you leave New York?"

"Once for all, I will not."

"All right, then, step here."

Tarboe arose and backed slowly over to the wall. He drew a revolver and placed it in front of him, anticipating an attack; but Norman did not move. The man tapped three times against the sheet-iron wall with the butt of his revolver.

One of the panels noiselessly moved aside. With an evil smirk on his face, Tarboe stepped out quickly.

"Good-by, my nephew," he called tauntingly.

Norman leaped from his chair and flung himself against the panel, but was sliding into place. He was too late. The iron plate snapped shut, and he was again a prisoner.

CHAPTER XV.

Ruth Garden's Rescue

NORMAN was seized with a mad fit of energy to escape when that iron panel closed between him and his pucile. He had thought it possible to dig his way through the ceiling, and to this he turned his attention.

Once more he turned his iron bed upon end and clipped to the top. With his penknife he quickly dug away some of the plastering and got to the laths. These he had no difficulty in tearing away, but the sheeting was a tougher proposition.

His penknife was small, but the blade was keen, and with this he succeeded in cutting a small hole in the floor. Then a desperate plan flashed through his brain.

The lamp! He exclaimed.

He climbed down from his rickety scaffolding and seized the lamp. It was a desperate thing to do, but he resolved to burn his way out of that prison or die in it. He took off the chimney, and, with blazing globe in his hand, climbed back to the iron bed.

Then ensued two hours of struggle and actual physical pain. Norman held the globe of the lamp against the hole he had made in the flooring above him until the cracking of the flame told him it had caught. He held the flame against the flooring until a big hole had been burned through. All the time he had to contend the blaze, rubbing it out with his bare hands and trying to shield his head from the flame and smoke.

Saw Daylight at Last

As the blaze grew and threatened to overwhelm him, Norman realized that it might be a signal for his release. But he was determined to fight for his very life, and he persisted. Finally he had burned a hole in the ceiling through which he could get his arms, head and shoulders, and through which he could see daylight.

His face was scorched and blackened with smoke, his hands were burned, and he was almost exhausted when he finally drew himself up through the hole in the ceiling. The room was a large front apartment, looking out on a balcony. The door was locked, and Norman dropped out through the window.

As he stepped out on the balcony he picked up, with an instinct of preservation, an empty water bottle, and with this in his hand he made his way cautiously along the balcony to the next window. He found the next room that faced the balcony he looked in and gave an exclamation of surprise.

In there, evidently a prisoner, was Ruth Garden.

Heedless of risk, Norman raised his glass in his hand and smashed the window. The blow alarmed Ruth and she screamed with terror when she saw the smoke-begrimed intruder. Norman burst through the window and exclaimed:

"How did you get here?"

"Who are you?" demanded the terror-stricken girl.

WHOLE TOWN QUARANTINED

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 13.—The State Commissioner of Agriculture has notified Sheriff Nelson Bowman, of the town of Webb, Herkimer County, to prevent the spread of rabies. The quarantine was established on account of a young woman who was recently bitten by her pet dog and who was sent to the Pasteur Institute in New York for treatment. Several persons who were coupling the town have brought dogs with them. In a number of instances the dogs got to fighting, and in trying to separate them several persons were bitten.

Complaint was made to the State Department that there were too many dogs in the towns, several of the campers owning as many as three animals. The order to quarantine the town was the result. The place is filled with Summer campers.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN BOSTON, AUGUST 13, 1908

THE BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, AUGUST 13, 1908

WHERE DID YOU GET IT, MR. BRYAN?

Three hundred thousand dollars has come to the sudden and unexpected surface at Mr. Bryan's headquarters, and excitement runs as high as though the sea serpent had appeared in the outer bay—horse-head, goggle-eyes, wolf-mouth and all—to exhibit its two hundred feet of awful length off Cape Cod.

Doubtless Mr. Mack would have concealed the presence of this huge sum had concealment been possible, but the yellow glare of it had shone, saffronwise, in too many hungry eyes. Wherefore, driven to an explanation, Mr. Mack—smiling the while with his usual vacuous complacency—"admits" that "it was left over by the management of the 1904 campaign."

There are scores of Democrats, wise in the finances of their party, to whom the Mack explanation in no wise explains. They are delighted with the fact of that three hundred thousand, but their natural curiosity no less refuses to be disposed of by Mr. Mack's simple "it was left over by the management of 1904." They say that such a story is as a traveler's tale told of a far land.

It must be confessed that fair minds, prudent minds, will justify the doubts of these good inquiring Democrats as in no sort captious. For one thing, there is no lack of claim that the "management of 1904" wore mittens. Then, too, there arises the disconcerting question of personnel. Who made up that "management of 1904"?—so purblind as to leave three hundred thousand dollars behind! Who but Mr. Taggart and Mr. Belmont!

Now Mr. Taggart's noble indifference to money is, of course, a proverb, while Mr. Belmont's careless, not to say lofty, disdain of it has attracted universal attention. Both gentlemen have been too much concerned with matters higher and more liberal than mere money—which is but dross—to give money a thought. And yet, while knowing these graceful things of both our Galahad of French Lick finance, and our Launcelot of Wall Street, the feeling still continues to press that three hundred thousand dollars in the golden lump would be, when all is said, a little too much money for even such sky-gazing altruists to overlook.

Having declined the Mack explanation, folk eager as to the origin of those mysterious thousands toss bridle rein on the neck of conjecture and let it choose direction for itself. Proceeding after this unguided fashion, the supposition that the appearance of this great fortune upon the scene of Mr. Bryan's hopes and fears is due, in any sort, to Mr. Mack himself, is next promptly thrust aside. Mr. Mack is no Sir Edward Kelly, no Doctor Dee, to transmute the baser metals of politics into half-eagles, eagles, and double eagles. That auriferous trick is far beyond his little alchemy. Still less is the microscopic Mack a Phrygian Midas, whose touch turns all to gold. Indeed, Mr. Mack is much more likely to turn what he touches into ridicule. And yet, there they are!—those confusing three hundred thousand dollars!—blinking and winking in their unsunned glory!—the campaign property and prop to the White House hopes of Mr. Bryan!

Some one must know its source. And since—as reflection has made instantly manifest—it can owe nothing in its advent to Mr. Mack, and since even a child would decline the Mackian statement that "it was left over by the management of 1904," a management broke while it lived and bankrupt when it died, the persistent query, Whom shall Mr. Bryan thank for that three hundred thousand? continues to gape for settlement.

Plainly, then, it was donated. And because your political contributor never permits his right hand to do anything—unless his left is wide awake and staring—the source of that donation is, at least, no secret to the donor.

Also, it is as little likely to be a secret to Mr. Bryan.

Campaign contributions are neither born of patriotism nor civic generosity. The tariff-protected trust-monger, Mr. Havemeyer, disposed of that assumption when, before the Gray Committee, he said: "Sometimes we give to one party, sometimes to the other, sometimes to both." Campaign contributions, and peculiarly when they reach the giant size of three hundred thousand dollars, are but as so much selfish bread cast upon the sordid waters of politics; and always on the distinct understanding, between contributor and candidate, that in event of the latter's victory it shall return after not too many days.

In brief, Mr. Bryan knows only too well who gave that three hundred thousand dollars. He knows why it was given and what, if elected, he will be expected to do for it. Which brings us by just marches to our caption, "Where did you get it, Mr. Bryan?"

Come, Mr. Bryan, speak up!—speak with your usual loud, clear, clarion voice! Where did you get it? To be sure, we might guess. There's Standard Oil. Just missing that twenty-nine million dollar fine by the narrow margin of a Grosscup, and seeing only Mr. Roosevelt in Mr. Taft, Standard Oil might easily be moved to take three hundred thousand dollars' worth of interest in you and your White House chances this campaign. Was it Standard Oil? Make yourself heard, Mr. Bryan, fearing nothing.

There stands that puzzle of that three hundred thousand! You should help a waiting world to the solution, Mr. Bryan. There will be neither political peace nor campaign content until you do. Wherefore hang not so bashfully in the enquiring wind.

Did Mr. Belmont give it to you along with his man Gompers, and his other man, Farley the strike-breaker? Did Mr. Ryan give it to you along with the money he contributed to your senatorial campaign? Did Mr. Rockefeller give it to you in return for promises of protection for his Standard Oil, and in resentment of Mr. Roosevelt's aggressive honesty? Did the railroads give it to you in return for your pooling plank in the platform? Or did you simply get it from some unprotected widow, through a will that you yourself had drawn for her dead husband—your confiding friend? Where did you get it, Mr. Bryan? You are ready enough to talk on most things. Talk now on this.

Mr. Hearst said in his Chicago speech: "No man can serve two masters, and no man can reconcile the conflicting elements of the Democratic party. Whoever tries must serve one and deceive the other, must make public pretense to the people and private compact with the trusts."

In view of the present, and as seen by the yellow light of that three hundred thousand dollars, that Chicago utterance of Mr. Hearst, aside from its political truth, hath much the look of prophecy. And should you, Mr. Bryan, continue mute to the above, offering no statement, making no explanation, but leaving all to the feeble mendacities of Mr. Mack, the public, remembering the words of Mr. Hearst, will say of you: "Mr. Bryan is making a public pretense to the people while making a private compact with the trusts, and that three hundred thousand dollars is one of the many evidences of that compact."

HARK! FROM THE TOMBS A JINGLING SOUND

Unhumorous Short Stories

By C. B. Quincy

THE SEASIDE LOVERS.

BETTY wore a blue bathing dress and was generally described as a peach. Billy, he wore a blue bathing suit, too, and was quite a good looking young fellow.

Billy pulled Betty out of the surf one day, and after that they were together often. With youth and Summer and surf and moon, it wasn't long before Billy and Betty were engaged. After that, like the characters in a Chambers story, they thought of telling their names and addresses.

Billy told Betty he sold shoes, and Betty told Billy she worked in a shirt-waist factory.

Which was highly unhumorous, for that was what they really did do.

MISS BINKS'S BURGLAR.

Miss Binks often thought of burglars. She wouldn't be a bit afraid of one, she often declared, and she carried around with her an ivory-handled pea-shooter of a revolver for the express purpose of terrifying any midnight marauder she might discover marauding.

When Miss Binks went down to stay with her friends, the Smiths, along went the ivory-handled revolver. There had been several burglaries in the neighborhood, and the news excited the guests rather disagreeably—all except Miss Binks, that is. She hoped for a chance to show that her courage wasn't merely tongue.

In the middle of the night Miss Binks awoke suddenly.

A noise!

Yes, it must be a stealthy step in the dining room.

Silently Miss Binks arose and donned a becoming kimono, which appeared, judging from the illustrations in the short stories of Collier's Weekly, to be the correct costume for burglar chasing. Then, ivory-handled pistol bravely clutched, she slipped out of her room.

Ah-ha! A light in the dining room. Ah-ha twice! A man putting things in a sack.

"Hands up!"

The man looked right up at the ivory-handled pistol and obeyed the command.

Then Miss Binks yelled for help, and down came the whole household.

"Why, you've captured a burglar," cried Mr. Smith.

A very unhumorous person, you must admit; since he should, of course, have said: "Good heavens, Miss Binks; why are you trying to shoot my nephew?"

SAVONBY'S VACATION.

Savonby went on a month's vacation. He went to a farm where, as the owner advertised, there were fresh eggs, fresh milk, fresh air, fresh scenery, all the joys of the country and no mosquitoes.

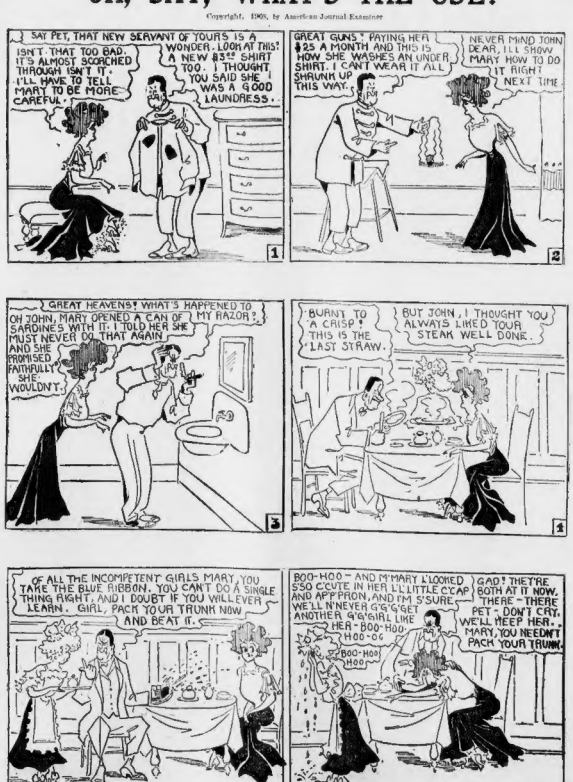
At the end of the month Savonby returned to his office.

"What sort of a time did you have?" asked his boss.

"Great," replied Savonby.

Could anything be more unhumorous?

OH, SAY, WHAT'S THE USE!



SAY PET, THAT NEW SERVANT OF YOURS IS A WONDER. LOOK AT THIS! A NEW $3.50 SHIRT TOO. I THOUGHT YOU SAID SHE WAS A GOOD LAUNDRESS.
ISN'T THAT TOO BAD. IT'S ALMOST SCORCHED THROUGH. ISN'T IT. I'LL HAVE TO TELL MARY TO BE MORE CAREFUL.
1
GREAT GUNS! PAYING HER $25 A MONTH AND THIS IS HOW SHE WASHES AN UNDER SHIRT. I CAN'T WEAR IT ALL SHRUNK UP THIS WAY.
NEVER MIND JOHN DEAR, I'LL SHOW MARY HOW TO DO IT RIGHT NEXT TIME.
2
GREAT HEAVENS! WHAT'S HAPPENED TO MY RAZOR?
OH JOHN, MARY OPENED A CAN OF SARDINES WITH IT. I TOLD HER SHE MUST NEVER DO THAT AGAIN, AND SHE PROMISED FAITHFULLY SHE WOULDN'T.
3
BURNT TO A CRISP! THIS IS THE LAST STRAW.
BUT JOHN, I THOUGHT YOU ALWAYS LIKED YOUR STEAK WELL DONE.
4
OF ALL THE INCOMPETENT GIRLS MARY, YOU TAKE THE BLUE RIBBON. YOU CAN'T DO A SINGLE THING RIGHT, AND I DOUBT IF YOU WILL EVER LEARN. GIRL, PACK YOUR TRUNK NOW AND BEAT IT.
5
BOO-HOO — AND MY MARY LOOKED SSO CCUTE IN HER LITTLE CCAP AND AFFRON, AND I'M SSURE WE'LL N'NEVER G'G'GGET ANOTHER G'G'GIRL LIKE HER - BOO-HOO HOO-OO
BOO-HOO HOO
GAD! THEY'RE BOTH AT IT NOW. THERE - THERE PET - DON'T CRY. WE'LL KEEP HER. MARY, YOU NEEDN'T PACK YOUR TRUNK.

As I Go Speeding West

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

AS I go speeding to the western gate,
Let me not murmur at unwelcome fate,
But rather life's unnumbered joys relate,
And leave them food for grief when I am gone.
I would not make men sad, while journeying on,
Nor leave them food for grief when I am gone.

TOO much we talk of gloom and tears and shade,
Forgetting that kind law a just God made,
Whereby small woes with mighty joys are paid;
Too much we talk of gloom.
Yea, there are vast delights on this good earth,
And he who counts them from his hour of birth
Shall find his life a thing of precious worth.
Yea, there are vast delights.

AS I go speeding west I look for light;
A million stars shine through one single night.
And all the sunset promises are bright,
As I go speeding west.

Love and the Universe

It Is the One That Keeps the Other Going, and to Ignore the Love Element in Life Is Folly

A LADY possessed of more knowledge of books than of human nature or divine laws has been urging parents to teach their young sons and daughters to discuss intellectual and serious subjects with the opposite sex, and drop all "sweetheart" expressions and references to sentiment from their conversation and their minds.

We might just as well ask the parent stalk to tell the blossom not to allow the wind or the bee to carry its "sweetheart" message to another flower, but to busy itself in growing bigger leaves or hardier branches than other plants.

We might as well tell the birds not to think about nests and mates, but to practise high flying and to develop athletic wings and learn new songs, in which no love note was heard.

Human nature is a part of Mother Nature, and the love element and the sex element is dominant in all.

That is how the universe keeps going.

"Emotional Dwarfs"

IF there is any one trait which needs curbing to-day in our rising generation, it is the tendency toward a too cold intellectuality. Especially is this true of our young girls.

Sentiment is eliminated from their natures and emotion dwarfed by the educational methods of the day.

Our brains are like our bodies and they follow the bent of habit. However perfect the body may be at birth, if it has no training or practice in early youth it cannot become supple and athletic in maturity if called upon to be so.

The mind which has never been allowed to think or dream of sentiment or romance cannot suddenly become loving and tender when marriage seems expedient.

The majority of our "well bred and finely educated" young women of modern times go to the altar emotional dwarfs.

Society mothers teach them that emotion is vulgar, and higher education sterilizes all natural sex impulses.

The result is not infrequently that society sympathizes with "a specific woman," who is "unhappily married," or that later in life outraged nature revenges itself and adds another hysterical spinster to a fashionable physician's list.

Should Be Fostered

THERE is nothing of more importance to the world than a wise and careful development of the "sweetheart sentiment" in the minds of young lads and misses.

It should neither be eliminated nor allowed to grow wild and unrestrained.

It should be cultivated, pruned, fertilized and guided by judicious and sympathetic home influences until, like a climbing rose tree, it beautifies and renders fragrant the more mechanical, intellectual framework of the brain and mind.

A certain amount of intellect is desirable in home life, but the most brilliant intellect without the tenderer and sweeter qualities does not make a home for husband or children or friends. It is like a grate without a fire in it.

It is the love nature in humanity which needs development.
